This Prospectus also contains forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties. Our actual results could differ materially from those anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of certain factors, including the considerations described below and elsewhere in this Prospectus. Prospective investors should pay particular attention to the fact that we are an Indian company and are subject to legal and regulatory environment which may differ in certain respects from that of other countries.

To obtain a better understanding of our business, you should read this section in conjunction with other sections of this Prospectus, including “Our Business”, “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations” and “Financial Statements” on pages 123, 229 and 180, respectively, together with all other financial information contained in this Prospectus. Unless otherwise stated, the financial data in this section is derived from and should be read in conjunction with our audited restated financial statements prepared in accordance with Indian GAAP and restated in accordance with the SEBI Regulations

- 3. Some events may not be material at present but may be having material impact in future.*

Note:

The risk factors as envisaged by the management along with the proposals to address the risk if any. Unless specified or quantified in the relevant risk factors below, we are not in a position to quantify the financial implication of any of the risks described in this section.

In this Prospectus, any discrepancies in any table between total and the sums of the amount listed are due to rounding off. Any percentage amounts, as set forth in “Risk Factors” on page 16 and “Management Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations” on page 229 of this Prospectus unless otherwise indicated, has been calculated on the basis of the amount disclosed in the “Audited Financial Statements, as restated” prepared in accordance with the Indian Accounting Standards

INTERNAL RISK FACTORS

- 1. We are involved in certain legal proceedings, any adverse developments related to which could materially affect our business, reputation and cash flows.*

ANI Integrated Services Limited

Our Company is involved in certain legal proceedings, which if determined, against us may or may not have adverse impact on the business and financial results of our Company. For details kindly refer chapter titled “Outstanding Litigation and Material Developments” at page 180 of this Prospectus. A brief detail of such outstanding litigations as on the date of this Prospectus are as follows:

Matters involving our Company

Nature of the Cases	No of Outstanding Cases	Amount Involved (in Lakh)*
Labour Law Cases	1	Not Ascertainable

Any developments in the proceedings, against us may constrain us to make provisions in our financial statements which may have an adverse impact on our business, goodwill, result of operations and financial condition.

- Our Company operates under several statutory and regulatory permits, licenses and approvals. Our inability to obtain, renew or maintain the statutory and regulatory licenses permits and approvals required to operate our business may have an adverse effect on our business & operations.

We require certain statutory and regulatory permits, licenses and approvals to operate our business. We believe that we have obtained all the requisite permits and licenses which are adequate to run our business. However there is no assurance that there are no other statutory/regulatory requirements which we are required to comply with. Further, some of these approvals are granted for fixed periods of time and need renewal from time to time. We are required to renew such permits, licenses and approvals as per the change of company name and conversion of the company. Further, certain licenses and registrations obtained by our Company contain certain terms and conditions, which are required to be complied by us. Any default by our Company in complying with the same, may result in inter alia the cancellation of such licenses, consents, authorizations and/or registrations, which may adversely affect our operations. There can be no assurance that the relevant authorities will issue or renew any of such permits or approvals in time or at all. Failure to renew, maintain or obtain the required permits or approvals in time may result in the interruption of our operations and may have a material adverse effect on our business. For further details, please refer to section titled “Government and Other Approvals” beginning on page 248 of the Prospectus

- An inability to recruit, train and retain qualified and experienced personnel who meet the staffing requirements of our clients may adversely affect our reputation, business prospects and future financial performance.

Our business depends on our ability to attract and retain qualified personnel who possess the skills and experience necessary to meet the requirements of our clients. Our business operations and financial performance may be adversely affected if we are unable to find sufficient personnel for our staffing and other businesses. In addition, we must continually evaluate and upgrade our database of available qualified personnel through recruiting and training programs to keep pace with changing client needs and emerging technologies. Competition for individuals with proven professional skills and experience is intense, and we expect demand for such individuals to remain strong in the foreseeable future. In particular, our engineering staffing business involves skilled personnel, and our success depends upon our ability to attract, develop, motivate and retain skilled engineering consultants. Qualified personnel may not be available to us in sufficient numbers and on terms of employment acceptable to us. We may not be able to effectively meet the expectations of our clients due to our failure to identify personnel with the requisite skills, experience or other attributes, and our training programs may not succeed in developing effective skills in a timely manner or at all. In addition, our staffing services business consists of the placement of individuals seeking employment. There can be no assurance that candidates for employment will continue to seek employment through us. Candidates generally seek temporary or regular positions through multiple sources, including us and our competitors. Any shortage of candidates could materially and adversely affect our business prospects. The cost of providing our services and the extent to which we utilize our employees, affects our profitability. The rate at which we utilize our employees is affected by a number of factors, including our ability to transition employees from completed contracts to new assignments and to hire and assimilate new employees in the jurisdictions where we operate; our ability to manage attrition; our need to devote time and resources to training, business development, professional development and other non-chargeable activities; and our ability to manage our Associate Employee workforce. As a result, our profitability could suffer if we are not able to maintain adequate staffing for our contracts.

- 4. *Our Company has entered into related party transaction and may continue to do so in the future. There can be no assurance that such transactions, individually or in the aggregate, will not have an adverse effect on our Company's financial condition and results of operations.

Our Company has entered into transactions with several related parties, including our Promoter, Directors and Group Companies. The transactions we have entered into and any future transactions with our related parties have involved or could potentially involve conflicts of interest. For more information regarding our related party transactions, please refer to the statement of related party transactions contained in Annexure O in the “Financial Statements” beginning on page 180. These transactions may involve conflicts of interests which may be detrimental to our Company. We cannot assure you that such transactions could not have been made on more favorable terms with unrelated parties.

- 5. *Our core business is susceptible to unfavorable socioeconomic conditions

Revenues from our business (domestic and international) represented 75% of our total revenues in Fiscal 2017. If business practices alter as a result of pressure from organized labour, political groups or regulatory agencies, it could have a material adverse effect on our business, results of operations and financial condition. As and when there is an economic slowdown the level of our services can go down and hence affect the revenues of the Company.

- 6. *Our Company has during the preceding one year from the date of the Prospectus allotted Equity Shares at a price which may be lower than the Issue Price.

In the last 12 months, we have made allotments by way of bonus issue of Equity Shares to the promoter and their relatives details of which are as follows:-

- Bonus issue in the ratio of 7:1 dated September 13, 2017 issued 70,00,000 Equity shares face value Rs. 10/- per Equity Share.

The Equity Shares allotted to investors pursuant to this Issue may be priced significantly higher due to various reasons including better performance by the Company, better economic conditions and passage of time. For Further details of equity shares issued, please refer to the chapter titled “Capital Structure” and “Basis for Issue Price” beginning on page 70 & 92 of this Prospectus respectively.

- 7. *The loss of, or a significant decrease in revenues from, one or more of our key clients or primary markets may adversely affect our revenues, results of operations and financial performance.

Our clients typically retain us on a non-exclusive, project-by-project basis. Many of our client contracts can be terminated with or without cause by providing notice and without termination-related penalties. Additionally, most of our contracts with clients are typically limited to discrete projects without any commitment to a specific volume of business or future work. Revenues from any particular client may vary between financial reporting periods depending on the nature and term of ongoing contracts with such client. However, historically certain key clients have accounted for a significant proportion of our revenues in the relevant business segments. In Fiscal 2017, our top 10 clients contributed 82%, of our total revenues while our largest client contributed 20%, of our total revenues. The loss of any of our key clients could have a material adverse effect on our results of operations or financial condition, even if we generate equivalent revenues from new clients. Significant dependence on certain clients, particularly in our relatively newer service offerings, may increase the potential volatility of our results of operations, if we do not achieve our expected margins or suffer losses on such contracts. In addition, it may increase our exposure to individual contract risks. Our clients can unilaterally decrease the amount of services we provide or terminate all services due to any reason including those beyond our control, including adverse business and financial conditions, which could have a material adverse effect on our future operating results. Further, we typically do not enter into long term contracts for our services and our service agreements with clients are typically cancellable by either party at relatively short notice. A significant majority of our revenues are derived from our operations in India and UAE. In Fiscal 2017 revenues from our operations in India represented 75% of our total revenues from operations while revenue from our operations from UAE represented 20 %, of our total revenue from operations in such period. The loss of, or a significant decrease in revenues from these key markets due to any economic or other factors beyond our control may adversely affect our revenues, results of operation and profitability. Though our top clients are from esteemed companies with long term recurring relationships

8. If we are unable to compete successfully with our competitors, our market position and profitability could be adversely impacted.

As an integrated engineering services company providing a wide range of business services, we compete with a range of organized and unorganized competitors, depending on the nature and location of services provided. Such competitors collectively compete with the majority of our services. Our competitors also may affect our business by entering into exclusive arrangements with existing or potential clients. There can be no assurance that we will be able to compete successfully against such competitors or that we will not lose our key employees or clients to such competitors. Additionally, we believe that our ability to compete also depends in part on factors outside our control, such as the availability of skilled resources, the price at which our competitors offer comparable services, and the extent of our competitors' responsiveness to their clients' needs. If we are unable to remain sufficiently competitive, or are unable to keep pace with them, our business and operating results will be adversely affected.

9. Some of the properties used by our Company including our Registered Office and Corporate Office are occupied by our Company on Leave and License basis owned by the promoter. Any termination of the Leave and License agreement or our failure to renew the same in a favorable, timely manner, or at all, could affect our activities.

The Registered Office and Corporate Office of our Company are not owned by us and are on rent. The Leave and License Agreement entered by the Company for the Corporate Office is valid for 9 months and shall be renewed by the Company in every 9 months. Any discontinuance of rent facility will lead us to locate any other premises. Our inability to identify the new premises could lead to disruption in our operations which could have an adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations adversely affect the operations, finances and profitability of our Company. Though, not more than 5% of the staff is office based.

10. We face significant employee related regulatory risks and any significant disputes with our employees and/or concerned regulators may adversely affect our business prospects, results of operations and financial condition.

We employ a large workforce of 25+ back force placed at our office and 1175+ contractual employees placed at various customer sites as of August 31, 2017. Inherent risks involved in managing such a large workforce includes possible discrimination and harassment claims for physical or sexual abuse, and other acts allegedly committed by our employees or agents, wrongful termination, violation of employment rights and minimum wage requirements, criminal activity or any other claims. Since our business success depends on our reputation, adverse publicity could impact the demand for our services. Adverse publicity concerning reported incidents or allegations of physical or sexual abuse or other harm, whether or not directly relating to or involving us, could result in termination of existing corporate relationships or inability to attract new corporate relationships, or increased insurance costs, all of which could adversely affect our operations. Our reputation can be severely damaged even by isolated incidents, particularly if the incidents receive considerable adverse publicity or result in substantial litigation.

We face the risk that lawsuits may be filed which could result in damages and other costs that our insurance may be inadequate to cover. In addition to diverting our management resources, such allegations may result in adverse publicity that may materially and adversely affect us and our reputation, regardless of whether such allegations are valid. Any such claim or the adverse publicity resulting from it may have a material adverse effect on our business, reputation, results of operations and financial condition including, without limitation, adverse effects caused by increased cost or decreased availability of insurance and decreased demand for our services from our clients. While we believe that we maintain good relationships with our employees, there can be no assurance that we will not experience future disruptions to our operations due to disputes or other problems with our work force, which may adversely affect our business and results of operations.

11. Our Company has not complied with some provisions of the Companies Act. Such non-compliance may attract penalties against our Company.

Our Company have not complied with certain provisions under the Companies Act in the past, for instance Company has not created a charge under Section 77 of Companies Act, 2013 on its vehicles which were bought by way of borrowings dated April 4, 2016, and March 30, 2015 which was secured by collateral Security of the said vehicles. In case of any cognizance being taken we may be subjected to penalty in respect of them. Although no show cause notice has been issued against the Company till date in respect of above, but in case of any such event we may be subjected to penal actions from the concerned authorities for the same

12. The insurance coverage procured by our Company with respect to business may not be adequate to protect us against all material hazards which may results in interruptions of operations/financial loss on account of slowdown and/or stoppage of work.

Our business involves many risks and hazards which may adversely affect our profitability, including natural calamities, breakdowns, failure or substandard performance of equipment, third party liability claims, labour disturbances, employee fraud and infrastructure failure. Our Company has covered itself against certain risks. Our Company cannot assure you that the operation of our business will not be affected by any of the incidents and hazards. Further, our Company may not have obtained or may not timely renew insurance cover for any of our asset that expressly requires us to maintain insurance.

If our arrangements for insurance or indemnification are not adequate to cover claims, including those exceeding policy aggregate limitations or exceeding the resources of the indemnifying party, our Company may be required to make substantial payments and our results of operations and financial condition may be adversely affected.

13. Our Promoter and members of our Promoter Group have significant influence over our operations, which will enable them to influence the outcome of matters submitted to shareholders for approval.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

As of August 31, 2017, our Promoter together with members of the Promoter Group beneficially owned approximately 100% of our share capital. Please see "Capital Structure" on page 70. The Promoter Group may be in a position to influence decisions relating to our business and the outcome of matters submitted to shareholders for approval. This control could delay, defer or prevent a change in control of our Company, impede a merger, consolidation, takeover or other business combination involving our Company, or discourage a potential acquirer from making a tender offer or otherwise attempting to obtain control of our Company even if it is in our Company's best interest. In addition, for so long as the Promoter Group continues to exercise significant control over our Company, it may influence the material policies of our Company in a manner that could conflict with the interests of our other shareholders. ANI Integrated Services Limited

Our financial statements are prepared in Indian rupees. However, substantial portion of our revenue and expenditures occur in markets outside of India and in each market's respective local currency, including the US dollar, Euro and among others. The exchange rates between the Indian Rupee and foreign currency have varied substantially in recent years and may continue to fluctuate significantly in the future. In preparing our financial statements, we translate revenue and expenses in our markets outside India from their local currencies into Indian rupees using the exchange rates prevailing at the time of such transactions. If the Indian rupee strengthens relative to local currencies, our reported revenue, gross profit and net income will be reduced to that effect. Given the complex global political and economic dynamics that affect exchange rate fluctuations, it is difficult to predict future fluctuations and the effect these fluctuations may have upon future reported results or our overall financial condition. Significant currency exchange rate fluctuations and currency devaluations could have an adverse effect on our results of operations from period to period.

As a result of the same they will be able to exercise significant influence over the control of the outcome of the matter that requires approval of the majority shareholders vote. Such a concentration of the ownership may also have the effect of delaying, preventing or deterring any change in the control of our company. In addition to the above, our promoters will continue to have the ability to take actions that are not in, or may conflict with our interest or the interest of some or all of our minority shareholders, and there is no assurance that such action will not have any adverse effect on our future financials or results of operations.

EXTERNAL RISK FACTORS

35. Applicability and/or Change in labour laws may affect our profitability.

India has stringent labour legislations that protect the interests of workers, including legislation that sets forth detailed procedures for dispute resolution and employee removal and legislation that imposes certain financial obligations on employers upon retrenchment. Any change or modification in the existing labour laws may affect our flexibility in formulating labour related policies.

36. To ensure compliance with the requirements of the Companies Act, 2013 and SEBI (Listing Obligations and Disclosure Requirements) Regulations, 2015, we may need to allocate additional resources, which may increase our regulatory compliance costs and divert management attention.

The Companies Act, 2013 introduced certain additional requirements which do not have corresponding equivalents under the Companies Act, 1956. Accordingly, we may face challenges in interpreting and complying with such provisions due to the limited jurisprudence on them. In the event our interpretation of such provisions of the Companies Act, 2013 differs from, or contradicts with, any judicial pronouncements or clarifications issued by the Government in the future, we may face regulatory actions or we may be required to undertake remedial steps. Further, we cannot currently determine the impact of provisions of the Companies Act, 2013 which are yet to be notified. Any increase in our compliance requirements or in our compliance costs may have an adverse effect on our business and results of operations.

37. Statistical and industry data in this Prospectus may be incomplete or unreliable.

The market and industry data used from these sources may have been reclassified by us for purposes of presentation. 38. Terrorist attacks, civil disturbances, wars, regional and communal conflicts, natural disasters, fuel shortages, and epidemics may have a material adverse effect on our Company's business and on the market for securities in India.

Our Company is subject to operating risks, such as the risk of substantial disruption or shutdown due to natural disasters, storms, fires, explosions, earthquakes, floods and other catastrophic events, actual, potential or suspected epidemic outbreaks, terrorist attacks and wars, loss of services of our external contractors, and industrial accidents. The occurrence of any such event could result in a temporary or long-term closure of our manufacturing facilities which will severely disrupt our business operations and materially -and adversely affect our financial condition. Additionally, any of these events could lower confidence in India's economy and create a perception that investments in companies with Indian operations involve a high degree of risk, which could have a material adverse effect on the price of the Equity Shares. Any discontinuation of business or loss of profits due to such extraneous factors may affect our operations.

39. Political instability or a change in economic liberalization and deregulation policies could seriously harm business and economic conditions in India generally and our business in particular.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

The Government of India has traditionally exercised and continues to exercise influence over many aspects of the economy, especially the defense, mining and aerospace sectors. The business and the market price and liquidity of the Equity Shares may be affected by interest rates, changes in Government policy, taxation, social and civil unrest and other political, economic or other developments in or affecting India. The Government of India has in recent years sought to implement economic reforms and the current government has implemented policies and undertaken initiatives that continue the economic liberalization policies pursued by previous governments. There can be no assurance that liberalization policies will continue in the future. The rate of economic liberalization could change, and specific laws and policies and other matters affecting investment in the securities could change as well. Any significant change in such liberalization and deregulation policies could adversely affect business and economic conditions in India, generally, and our business, prospects, financial condition and results of operations, in particular.

40. The proposed new taxation system in India could adversely affect our business and the trading price of the Equity Shares.

The Government of India is presently in the process of reforming Indian tax laws primarily through the introduction of the goods and services tax, the direct taxes code and provisions relating to the general anti-avoidance rule (“GAAR”). The national goods and services tax (“GST”) has now been implemented and has replaced all indirect taxes that were levied on goods and services earlier. The direct taxes code aims to simplify the direct tax laws in India. The direct tax code will revise and consolidate the structure of direct taxes into a single legislation. Whilst, a draft of the direct tax code was released on March 31, 2014, the implementation of the direct taxes code is presently uncertain. The GAAR provisions are intended to cover arrangements which are structured to deliberately avoid paying tax in India. If GAAR provisions are invoked, then the tax authorities have wide powers, including denial of tax benefit or a benefit under a tax treaty. As the taxation system in India will see significant changes, its consequent effects cannot be determined at present and there can be no assurance that such effects would not adversely affect our business, future financial performance and the trading price of the Equity Shares.

41. Under Indian law, foreign investors are subject to investment restrictions that limit our ability to attract foreign investors, which may adversely impact the trading price of the Equity Shares.

Under foreign exchange regulations currently in force in India, transfer of shares between non-residents and residents are freely permitted (subject to certain exceptions), if they comply with the valuation and reporting requirements specified by the RBI. If a transfer of shares is not in compliance with such requirements and does not fall under any of the exceptions specified by the RBI, then the RBI’s prior approval is required. Further, our Company is under prior permission list of RBI for further investment by NRI in the Company’s Equity Shares. Additionally, shareholders who seek to convert Rupee proceeds from a sale of shares in India into foreign currency and repatriate that foreign currency from India require a no-objection or a tax clearance certificate from the Indian income tax authorities. We cannot assure you that any required approval from the RBI or any other government agency can be obtained on any particular terms or at all

42. The market value of an investor’s investment may fluctuate due to the volatility of the Indian securities markets.

Indian securities markets are more volatile than the securities markets in certain countries which are members of the OECD. Stock Exchanges in India have in the past experienced substantial fluctuations in the prices of listed securities. The market price of our Ordinary Shares could fluctuate significantly as a result of market volatility. The Indian Stock Exchanges have experienced problems which, if they were to continue or recur, could affect the market price and liquidity of the securities of Indian companies, including the equity shares. These problems have included temporary exchange closures, broker defaults, settlement delays and strikes by brokerage firm employees. In addition, the governing bodies of the Indian stock exchanges have from time to time imposed restrictions on trading in certain securities, limitations on price movements and margin requirements. Furthermore, from time to time, disputes have occurred between listed companies and stock exchanges and other regulatory bodies, which in some cases may have had a negative effect on market sentiment.

43. A downgrade in India's credit rating may have an adverse effect on our business, results of operations or Equity Shares.

Any downgrade to India's sovereign credit rating by any rating agency, as well as negative changes to the perceived creditworthiness of Indian Government-related obligations, could have an adverse impact on financial markets and economic conditions in India and worldwide. Any volatility in the capital markets in India or in other developed or emerging countries, whether resulting from a downgrade of the sovereign credit rating of Indian debt obligations or otherwise, may have an adverse effect on our business and the trading price of our Equity Shares.

44. After this Issue, the price of our Equity Shares may be volatile.

The Issue Price will be determined by us in consultation with the Book Running Lead Manager in compliance with Chapter VIII of the ICDR Regulations, and it may not necessarily be indicative of the market price of the Equity Shares after this Issue is completed. The trading price of our Equity Shares may fluctuate after this Issue due to a variety of factors, including our results of operations and the performance of our business, competitive conditions, general economic, political and social factors, the performance of the Indian and global economy and significant developments in India's fiscal regime, volatility in the Indian and global securities market, changes in the estimates of our performance or recommendations by financial analysts and announcements by us or others regarding contracts, acquisitions, strategic partnerships, joint ventures, or capital commitments. Due to which the market value of an investor's investment may fluctuate. In addition, if the stock markets in general experience a loss of investor confidence, the trading price of our Equity Shares could decline for reasons unrelated to our business, financial condition or operating results. The trading price of our Equity Shares might also decline in reaction to events that affect other companies in our industry even if these events do not directly affect us. Each of these factors, among others, could adversely affect the price of our Equity Shares. There can be no assurance that an active trading market for the Equity Shares will be sustained after this Issue, or that the price at which the Equity Shares have historically traded will correspond to the price at which the Equity Shares are offered in this Issue or the price at which the Equity Shares will trade in the market subsequent to this Issue.

45. A slowdown in economic growth in India could cause our business to suffer.

We are incorporated in India. As a result, we are highly dependent on prevailing economic conditions in India and our results of operations are significantly affected by factors influencing the Indian economy. A slowdown in the Indian economy could adversely affect our business, including our ability to grow our assets, the quality of our assets, and our ability to implement our strategy.

46. Factors that may adversely affect the Indian economy, and hence our results of operations, may include:

- Changes in policies pertaining to the engineering sectors;
- Any increase in Indian interest rates or inflation;
- Any scarcity of credit or other financing in India;
- Prevailing income conditions among Indian consumers and Indian corporations;
- Volatility in, and actual or perceived trends in trading activity on, India's principal stock exchanges;
- Variations in exchange rates;
- Changes in India's tax, trade, fiscal or monetary policies;
- Political instability, terrorism or military conflict in India or in countries in the region or globally, including in India's various neighboring countries;

ANI Integrated Services Limited

- Prevailing regional or global economic conditions; and
- Other significant regulatory or economic developments in or affecting India.

Any slowdown in the Indian economy or in the growth of the sectors we participate may adversely affect our business and financial performance and the price of our Equity Shares.

47. Rights of shareholders under Indian law may be more limited than under the laws of other jurisdictions.

Our Articles of Association, which include regulations applicable to our Board of Directors, and Indian law, govern our corporate affairs. Legal principles relating to these matters and the validity of corporate procedures, directors' fiduciary duties and liabilities, and shareholders' rights may differ from those that would apply to a company incorporated in another jurisdiction. Shareholders' rights under Indian law may not be as extensive as shareholders' rights under the laws of other countries or jurisdictions. Investors may have more difficulty in asserting their rights as our shareholders than as shareholders of a corporation in another jurisdiction.

48. Investors in the Equity Shares may not be able to enforce a judgment of a foreign court against us, our directors or executive officers.

We are a limited liability company incorporated under the laws of India. Recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments are provided for under Section 13 and Section 44A of the Civil Procedure Code on a statutory basis. Section 13 of the Civil Procedure Code provides that foreign judgments shall be conclusive as to any matter thereby directly adjudicated upon between the same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the same title except: (a) where it has not been pronounced by a court of competent jurisdiction; (b) where it has not been given on the merits of the case; (c) where it appears on the face of the proceedings to be founded on an incorrect view of international law or a refusal to recognize the law of India in cases in which such law is applicable; (d) where the proceedings in which the judgment was obtained are opposed to natural justice; (e) where it has been obtained by fraud; and (f) where it sustains a claim founded on a breach of any law in force in India. It is unlikely that a court in India would award damages on the same basis as a foreign court if an action were to be brought in India. Furthermore, it is unlikely that an Indian court would enforce foreign judgments if that court was of the view that the amount of damages awarded was excessive or inconsistent with public policy, and is uncertain whether an Indian court would enforce foreign judgments that would contravene or violate Indian law.

49. There is no guarantee that the Equity Shares issued pursuant to the issue will be listed on the SME Platform of NSE in a timely manner, or at all.

In accordance with Indian law and practice, permission for listing and trading of the Equity Shares issued pursuant to the issue will not be granted until after the Equity Shares have been issued or allotted. Approval for listing and trading will require all relevant documents authorizing the issuing of Equity Shares to be submitted. There could be a failure or delay in listing the Equity Shares on the SME Platform of NSE. Any failure or delay in obtaining the approval would restrict your ability to dispose of your Equity Shares.

50. Investors will be subject to market risks until the Equity Shares credited to the investor's demat account are listed and permitted to trade by the Stock Exchanges.

Our Company will apply to the stock exchanges for final listing and trading approval post allotment of the Equity Shares. Investors can start trading the Equity Shares allotted to them only after the Equity Shares have been credited to an investor's demat account, are listed and permitted to trade by the Stock Exchanges. Since our Equity Shares are currently traded on the NSE, investors will be subject to market risk from the date they pay for the Equity Shares to the date when trading approval is granted for the same. Further, there can be no assurance that the Equity Shares allocated to an investor will be credited to the investor's demat account or that trading of the Equity Shares will commence in a timely manner.

SECTION III- INTRODUCTION

SUMMARY OF OUR INDUSTRY

Global Economy: A Firming Recovery

The pickup in global growth anticipated in the April World Economic Outlook remains on track, with global output projected to grow by 3.5 percent in 2017 and 3.6 percent in 2018. The unchanged global growth projections mask somewhat different contributions at the country level. U.S. growth projections are lower than in April, primarily reflecting the assumption that fiscal policy will be less expansionary going forward than previously anticipated. Growth has been revised up for Japan and especially the euro area, where positive surprises to activity in late 2016 and early 2017 point to solid momentum. China's growth projections have also been revised up, reflecting a strong first quarter of 2017 and expectations of continued fiscal support. Inflation in advanced economies remains subdued and generally below targets; it has also been declining in several emerging economies, such as Brazil, India, and Russia.

While risks around the global growth forecast appear broadly balanced in the near term, they remain skewed to the downside over the medium term. On the upside, the cyclical rebound could be stronger and more sustained in Europe, where political risk has diminished. On the downside, rich market valuations and very low volatility in an environment of high policy uncertainty raise the likelihood of a market correction, which could dampen growth and confidence. The more supportive policy tilt in China, especially strong credit growth, comes with rising downside risks to medium-term growth. Monetary policy normalization in some advanced economies, notably the United States, could trigger a faster-than-anticipated tightening in global financial conditions. And other risks discussed in the April 2017 WEO, including a turn toward inward looking policies and geopolitical risks, remain salient.

Projected global growth rates for 2017–18, though higher than the 3.2 percent estimated for 2016, are below pre-crisis averages, especially for most advanced economies and for commodity-exporting emerging and developing economies. Among the former, many face excess capacity as well as headwinds to potential growth from aging populations, weak investment, and slowly advancing productivity. In view of weak core inflation and muted wage pressures, policy settings should remain consistent with lifting inflation expectations in line with targets, closing output gaps, and—where appropriate—external rebalancing. Reforms to boost potential output are of the essence, and slow aggregate output growth makes it even more important that gains are shared widely across the income distribution. Financial stability risks need close monitoring in many emerging economies. Commodity exporters should continue adjusting to lower revenues, while diversifying their sources of growth over time.

Global Growth Forecast to pick up in 2017 and 2018

Global growth for 2016 is now estimated at 3.2 percent, slightly stronger than the April 2017 forecast, primarily reflecting much higher growth in Iran and stronger activity in India following national accounts revisions. Economic activity in both advanced economies and emerging and developing economies is forecast to accelerate in 2017, to 2 percent and 4.6 percent respectively, with global growth projected to be 3.5 percent, unchanged from the April forecast. The growth forecast for 2018 is 1.9 percent for advanced economies, 0.1 percentage point below the April 2017 WEO, and 4.8 percent for emerging and developing economies, the same as in the spring. The 2018 global growth forecast is unchanged at 3.6 percent. The revisions reflect primarily the macroeconomic implications of changes in policy assumptions for the world's two largest economies, the United States and China, as discussed below.

Advanced economies

- The growth forecast in the United States has been revised down from 2.3 percent to 2.1 percent in 2017 and from 2.5 percent to 2.1 percent in 2018. While the markdown in the 2017 forecast reflects in part the weak growth outturn in the first quarter of the year, the major factor behind the growth revision,

ANI Integrated Services Limited

especially for 2018, is the assumption that fiscal policy will be less expansionary than previously assumed, given the uncertainty about the timing and nature of U.S. fiscal policy changes. Market expectations of fiscal stimulus have also receded.

- The growth forecast has also been revised down for the United Kingdom for 2017 on weaker-than-expected activity in the first quarter.
- By contrast, growth projections for 2017 have been revised up for many euro area countries, including France, Germany, Italy, and Spain, where growth for the first quarter of 2017 was generally above expectations. This, together with positive growth revisions for the last quarter of 2016 and high-frequency indicators for the second quarter of 2017, indicate stronger momentum in domestic demand than previously anticipated.
- The growth forecast for 2017 was also revised up for Canada, where buoyant domestic demand boosted first-quarter growth to 3.7 percent and indicators suggest resilient second-quarter activity, and marginally for Japan, where private consumption, investment, and exports supported first-quarter growth.

Emerging and developing economies

Emerging and developing economies are projected to see a sustained pickup in activity, with growth rising from 4.3 percent in 2016 to 4.6 percent in 2017 and 4.8 percent in 2018. These forecasts reflect upward revisions, relative to April, of 0.2 percentage point for 2016, and 0.1 percentage points for 2017. As in the most recent WEO forecast vintages, growth is primarily driven by commodity importers, but its pickup reflects to an important extent gradually improving conditions in large commodity exporters that experienced recessions in 2015–16, in many cases caused or exacerbated by declining commodity prices.

- China's growth is expected to remain at 6.7 percent in 2017, the same level as in 2016, and to decline only modestly in 2018 to 6.4 percent. The forecast for 2017 was revised up by 0.1 percentage point, reflecting the stronger than expected outturn in the first quarter of the year underpinned by previous policy easing and supply-side reforms (including efforts to reduce excess capacity in the industrial sector). For 2018, the upward revision of 0.2 percentage point mainly reflects an expectation that the authorities will delay the needed fiscal adjustment (especially by maintaining high public investment) to meet their target of doubling 2010 real GDP by 2020. Delay comes at the cost of further large increases in debt, however, so downside risks around this baseline have also increased.
- Growth in India is forecast to pick up further in 2017 and 2018, in line with the April 2017 forecast. While activity slowed following the currency exchange initiative, growth for 2016—at 7.1 percent—was higher than anticipated due to strong government spending and data revisions that show stronger momentum in the first part of the year. With a pickup in global trade and strengthening domestic demand, growth in the ASEAN-5 economies is projected to remain robust at around 5 percent, with generally strong first quarter outturns leading to a slight upward revision for 2017 relative to the April WEO.
- In Emerging and Developing Europe, growth is projected to pick up in 2017, primarily driven by a higher growth forecast for Turkey, where exports recovered strongly in the last quarter of 2016 and the first quarter of 2017 following four quarters of moderate contraction, and external demand is projected to be stronger with improved prospects for euro area trading partners. The Russian economy is projected to recover gradually in 2017 and 2018, in line with the April forecast.
- Growth in the Middle East, North Africa, Afghanistan, and Pakistan region is projected to slow considerably in 2017, reflecting primarily a slowdown in activity in oil exporters, before recovering in 2018. The 2017–18 forecast is broadly unchanged relative to the April 2017 WEO, but the growth outcome in 2016 is estimated to have been considerably stronger in light of higher growth in Iran. The recent decline in oil prices, if sustained, could weigh further on the outlook for the region's oil exporters.

Risks

Short-term risks are broadly balanced, but medium-term risks are still skewed to the downside. Risks to the U.S. forecast are two sided: the implementation of a fiscal stimulus (such as revenue-reducing tax reform)

could drive U.S. demand and output growth above the baseline forecast, while implementation of the expenditure based consolidation proposed in the Administration’s budget would drive them lower. On the upside, the pickup in activity in the euro area, with buoyant market sentiment and reduced political risks, could be stronger and more durable than currently projected. On the downside, protracted policy uncertainty or other shocks could trigger a correction in rich market valuations, especially for equities, and an increase in volatility from current very low levels. In turn, this could dent spending and confidence more generally, especially in countries with high financial vulnerabilities. Lower commodity prices would further exacerbate macroeconomic strains and complicate adjustment needs in many commodity exporters. Other downside risks threatening the strength and durability of the recovery include:

- A more protracted period of policy uncertainty-Despite a decline in election related risks, policy uncertainty remains at a high level and could well rise further, reflecting—for example—difficult-to-predict U.S. regulatory and fiscal policies, negotiations of post-Brexit arrangements, or geopolitical risks. This could harm confidence, deter private investment, and weaken growth.
- Financial tensions- In China, failure to continue the recent focus on addressing financial sector risks and curb excessive credit growth (mainly through tighter macro prudential policy settings) could result in an abrupt growth slowdown, with adverse spillovers to other countries through trade, commodity price, and confidence channels. A faster-than expected monetary policy normalization in the United States could tighten global financial conditions and trigger reversals in capital flows to emerging economies, along with U.S. dollar appreciation, straining emerging economies with large leverage, U.S. dollar pegs, or balance sheet mismatches. At the same time, to the extent that such monetary policy tightening reflects a stronger U.S. outlook, U.S. trading partners would benefit from positive demand spillovers. In some euro area countries, weak bank balance sheets and an unfavorable profitability outlook could interact with higher political risks to reignite financial stability concerns, and a rise in long-term interest rates would worsen public debt dynamics. Finally, a broad rollback of the strengthening of financial regulation and oversight achieved since the crisis—both nationally and internationally—could lower capital and liquidity buffers or weaken supervisory effectiveness, with negative repercussions for global financial stability.
- Inward-looking policies- Over the longer term, failure to lift potential growth and make growth more inclusive could fuel protectionism and hinder market-friendly reforms. The results could include disrupted global supply chains, lower global productivity, and less affordable tradable consumer goods, which harm low income households disproportionately.
- Noneconomic factors- Rising geopolitical tensions, domestic political discord, and shocks arising from weak governance and corruption can all weigh on economic activity.

Indian Economy

- Economic growth is projected to remain strong and India will remain the fastest growing G20 economy. The increase in public wages and pensions will support consumption. Private investment will recover gradually as excess capacity diminishes, and the landmark Goods and Services Tax and other measures to improve the ease of doing business are being implemented. However, large non-performing loans and high leverage of some companies are holding back investment.
- Monetary policy is projected to remain tight as inflation expectations have still not fully adjusted down. The need to reduce the relatively high public-debt-to-GDP ratio leaves little room for fiscal stimulus. However, investing more in physical and social infrastructure is critical to raising living standards for all. This should be financed by a comprehensive reform of income and property taxes. Restoring credit discipline and cleaning up banks' balance sheets will be instrumental to support the credit growth needed to finance more business investment.
- Trade openness has increased, partly driven by a competitive service sector. Manufacturing has lagged behind, with limited contribution to exports and job creation, leaving many workers in low-paid jobs. Promoting quality job creation in manufacturing would require reducing further restrictions on FDI and trade, modernising labour regulations and providing better education and skills. Better infrastructure, transport and logistic services would facilitate manufacturing firms' access to global markets, particularly from remote and poorer regions.

Robust consumption and a rebound in exports are boosting growth

- Growth remains strong. Private consumption has been buoyant, boosted by the increase in public wages and pensions and by higher agricultural and rural incomes. The costs of the withdrawal of high denomination notes – demonetization in November 2016 are wearing off, and sales of cars and two-wheelers have bounced back. Investment has so far failed to rebound, despite government efforts to develop rail, road and energy infrastructure and to improve the ease of doing business. Excess capacity (e.g. in the steel sector) and the weak financial position of some corporations, combined with large non-performing loans for most public sector banks, have restrained business investment.
- Exports have picked up, driven by strong demand from Asia and the euro area. Higher oil prices and gold imports, coupled with a decline in remittances inflows, are reflected in some deterioration in the current account deficit. However, the deficit remains well below its longer-term average. FDI net inflows have been rising steadily since 2014 and are fully financing the current account deficit.

ENGINEERING INDUSTRY

Global outlook

Engineering and construction companies plan to invest 5% of annual revenue in digital operations solutions per annum over the next five years. And they are setting themselves ambitious targets for the level of digitization and integration that can be achieved. Technologies such as building information modeling (BIM) and the integration of design and off-site component based assembly are evolving fast and coming of age. At the same time, new innovations offer future integration and productivity opportunities and the increased ability to monitor assets over the lifecycle rather than just the construction phase. Autonomous vehicles can provide driverless transportation of materials between sites and on-site. Flying robots and drone surveillance offer the prospect of easier planning, design, monitoring and execution of projects as well use in repairs and maintenance activities.

Product development and engineering is the area where engineering and construction companies rate themselves as furthest advanced down the digitization and integration road. This reflects the importance of the growth of digital design and engineering in the construction sector. Digital solutions include features such as automated data acquisition, storage and access; construction sequencing; progress monitoring; and virtual rehearsal.

That's not to say that there are no bright spots for E&C companies. In the U.S., construction starts were up about 15 percent in 2015 and are forecast to advance another 6 percent this year. Also, infrastructure spending has been neglected since the 2008 recession and some analysts believe that worldwide annual infrastructure spending will grow to more than US$9 trillion per year by 2025, from a little over $4 trillion now — that is, if the political will can be mustered to support much-needed improvements. In addition to the fundamental economic stresses on the E&C sector, established companies face intensifying competition from firms in low-cost nations, which weighs on E&C profit margins and has driven many in the industry to commoditize their services. To make up for it, some E&C companies have turned to a mergers and acquisition strategy centered on acquiring companies offering promising new sources of value in new geographies, new lines of business, or both.

Market size

The E&C sector has been in the throes of consolidation for the past few years. Long a highly fragmented business, especially in design and engineering, the industry is finally shifting. Firms are now looking for greater value through acquisitions — they want to enter new geographic and vertical markets, to diversify or narrow their service offerings, to become more vertically integrated, and to boost their talent pool. The sheer number of deals remained high in 2015. There were few if any true megamergers; virtually all the deals involved big companies buying smaller companies to serve a particular strategic objective.

Sometimes expansion is the goal: AECOM’s 2014 acquisition of rival URS for $4 billion significantly enhanced AECOM’s global client base, primarily for power distribution and oil and gas projects. More typically, firms make acquisitions to target particular geographic markets. That can be risky — URS bought Flint Energy Services in 2012 to gain traction in western Canada’s oil sands region, a deal that might have struggled in the face of the recent collapse in oil prices. A further motivation involves buying another firm in order to gain entry into a particular services area, either to augment a company’s current services portfolio or to move up the value chain in search of less commoditized offerings.

As the talent shortage in the sector becomes more acute, E&C firms are also making acquisitions simply to build up their talent pools. This is particularly the case in construction, which is graying quickly and becoming more dependent on talent in specific locations. (Design and engineering, in contrast, have benefited more from globalization and technology, allowing firms to hire younger skilled people and put them to work anywhere in the world.)

Consolidation as a strategy, however, won’t succeed unless the engineering and construction firm understands its market well, to the point of being able to forecast growth areas that can be targeted better by an acquisition. Firms need to fully understand the markets they want to get into, the best way to get into them, and the particular differentiating capabilities those markets require for success. With that insight in mind, E&C companies can undertake acquisitions with a disciplined view of the skills they need and how they plan to use the acquisition to differentiate themselves from competitors. Acquisitions must be made carefully, with an eye toward how the combined companies are integrated and create unique value in the market. The deal must also complement the acquiring company’s current services portfolio, be accretive to earnings, and fit clearly into the growth strategy.

Indian outlook

The engineering sector in India was valued at US$ 83.4 billion as of 2014, growing at a CAGR of 15.8 per cent during 2011 to 2014. Overall market production was valued at US$ 80.5 billion in 2014, up 17.8 per cent from 2011. The market size of capital goods and engineering sector is expected to reach US$ 125.4 billion by FY 2017. In the fiscal year 2014-15, India’s engineering exports was valued at US$ 70.4 billion, a growth of 14.6 per cent over FY 2013-14. India is the 14th largest producer and 10th largest consumer of machine tools in the world. India is also fast emerging as a global research hub for engineering goods, with a significant amount of the country’s GDP invested in R&D.

The growth in India’s engineering industry by market size in value and production value since 2011 is as follows:

Contribution to the GDP

ANI Integrated Services Limited

The Indian engineering sector accounts for 5 per cent of India's GDP. Rising domestic demand, increasing investment and growth opportunities, favorable government policies and global & domestic focus on establishing low cost plants have propelled the engineering sector to greater heights. The contribution of the engineering sector to India's GDP over the last three years can be categorized on the basis of cost, the manufacturing segment and pure engineering industry.

The economic contribution of the manufacturing sector to India's GDP has reported a steady increase through the years, valued at US$ 225 billion in 2014. In the last few years alone, the engineering and machinery sector has played a crucial role in boosting the Indian economy and also contributed towards the promotion of associated industrial sectors of the country. The engineering sector alone is estimated to have generated US$ 52 billion towards the Indian economy in 2014.

Growth of Indian Engineering Exports

In the last five years, Indian engineering exports have achieved an average growth of over 9.1 per cent. As of 2014-15 engineering exports was valued at US$ 70.5 billion, up from US$ 49.9 billion recorded in 2010-11. The value of exports reached US$ 9.2 billion in Jan-Feb 2016. Around 40 per cent of India's engineering goods and services were exported to Americas and European Union in 2015 (April-February) and 45 per cent to Asian countries.

An analysis of India's engineering exports over the last year by market value, category of products, and country-wise split is given below:

Percentage of Exports by Geography (100%= US$ 53.7 billion)

Government & and the Engineering Sector

A. Department of Commerce

- The Department of Commerce, under the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, is responsible for regulation, development and promotion of India’s international trade and commerce through formulation of appropriate international trade & commercial policy and implementation of the various provisions thereof.
- The Vision of the Department is to make India a major player in the world trade by 2020 and assuming a significant role in the international trade bodies.

B. Department of Heavy Industries (DHI)

- The Department of Heavy Industries (DHI), under the Ministry of Heavy Industries and Public Enterprises, is the nodal authority in India responsible for promoting the growth of heavy industries.
- The DHI promotes more than 19 various industrial sub-sectors. Some sectors that the DHI actively encourages include machine tools, heavy electrical engineering, industrial machinery, and automobiles

C. Engineering Export Promotion Council (EEPC)

- The Engineering Export Promotion Council (EEPC) is the apex body in charge of promoting India’s engineering products and services in the global market.
- India’s engineering exports include the sectors of transport equipment, capital goods, other machinery and equipment, and light engineering products such as castings, forgings and fasteners. The EEPC supports and encourages domestic firms in developing international trade.

D. Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion (DIPP)

- The Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion (DIPP), under the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, is the principal agency responsible for monitoring India’s industrial growth and production.
- The DIPP constantly conducts studies to assess and forecast the need for technological development in various industrial sectors including cement and light engineering, among others.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

E. Government Regulatory framework

India's National Manufacturing Policy (NMP) aims to increase the percentage contribution of the manufacturing industry in India's GDP from its current 16 per cent to 25 per cent, by 2022. In order to achieve this significant target, the Government of India has introduced various tax incentives and other key initiatives to support and encourage the growth of the engineering sector. India also plans to facilitate five more National Manufacturing and Investment Zones (NIMZs), each spread over 5,000 hectares, with world-class infrastructure, clean technologies and skill development institutes.

Current Trend in the Indian Engineering Industry

In the last few years, India has emerged as a global engineering hub. Several global manufacturing majors have partnered with Indian firms in setting up successful engineering units across the country. A few of these include Alstom (France), Ansaldo (Italy), Babcock (UK), Colfax Corporation, GE (USA), Hitachi (Japan), Legrand (France), MHI (Japan), Schneider Electric (France), and Toshiba (Japan). One of the key areas of focus for domestic players has also been technology up-gradation. Several firms have formed strategic alliances with technology suppliers to upgrade their production and processing capabilities. With the entry of foreign players, competition has further increased, spurring domestic investment in technology to significantly improve production quality and capacity. Increasingly, domestic players are securing ISO 9,000 accreditation to further strengthen their position in the global market.

India advantage

Industry growth in the export market has been driven by unique local advantages. These include:

- Low cost of labour force: India's manufacturing wages are among the lowest worldwide, averaging US$ 1.50 per hour
- Demographic dividend: India's abundant labour force is English-speaking, young, skilled, and cost efficient
- Free Trade Agreements: India is one of more than 10 nations that have signed Free Trade Agreements. It is a signatory to the ASEAN-India Free Trade Area and provides companies access to one of the world's largest FTAs.
- Growing domestic market: Rapid economic growth has provided a large domestic market for manufacturers
- Strategic location: Manufacturing in India gives companies direct access to the vast domestic and South Asian market

Future of the Indian Engineering Sector

India's engineering sector is expected to grow by almost 25 per cent annually during the period 2015-18. Increased investment in infrastructure, favorable government policies, new oil & gas power and metallurgy projects are expected to give this segment the required fillip. Spending in this sector is expected to reach US$ 1.1 trillion by 2020. The export market also helped establish brand recall for the local players, in the global scene. As a result emerging services such as new product design, product improvement, maintenance, and manufacturing systems design are getting progressively outsourced to these Indian firms.

The Government of India (GoI) launched the National Manufacturing Policy in 2012 with two important objectives:

- To increase the contribution of the manufacturing sector to India's GDP to 25 per cent within a period of ten years
- To create 100 million jobs by 2022

ANI Integrated Services Limited

In order to achieve this target, GoI has introduced several initiatives and incentives to give further impetus to this sector.

- The Indian government has appointed the Engineering Export Promotion Council (EEPC) to be the apex body in charge of promotion of engineering goods, products and services from India.
- Recent government initiatives like Make In India campaign & Vibrant Gujarat summit aims to boost manufacturing sector in India

GLOBAL STAFFING INDUSTRY

Engineering continues to be one of the most robust professions. It's one that offers immense gratification along with concrete economic benefits. It's backed up by the fact that the unemployment rate among engineers is currently about half the national average. Also, engineers end up in other leading positions like management and legislation, and other jobs that benefit the economy. The engineering jobs that offer the highest compensation are in ocean ($169,000), followed by cost management ($129,500), petroleum ($127,043), safety ($125,000), minerals and metals ($121,000), and fire protection ($116,000).

CAETS, the International Council of Academies of Engineering and Technological Sciences, recognizes the importance of revitalizing engineering as a profession. Engineers are responsible for technological development that has created our modern society; they have built infrastructure, industrial production, mechanized agriculture, modern transportation systems, and technological innovations such as mass media, computers and communication systems. Technological development is continuing at an ever-increasing pace, especially in new areas such as information and communication technology, nanotechnology and biotechnology. These developments are exciting, require increased engineering capacity and deserve public acclaim. Technological innovations have created wealth, facilitated our life and provided comfort. Prosperity and economic development are not distributed equally over the world. Realization of the United Nations Millennium Development Goals will require significant effort by engineers, but also creativity because the contexts of developing countries often requires new ways of doing things or the rediscovery of traditional techniques.

There is growing demand for engineering talent from a growing and developing global population. And the nature of engineering is changing. Engineering has always been multi-disciplinary in nature, combining physics, chemistry and mathematics with creative design, invention and innovation; but its scope is increasing. Engineers, more and more, have to be aware of the social and environmental impacts of technology, and have to work in complex teams, interacting and cooperating with society.

It is unfortunate that, under these circumstances of growing need for multi-talented engineers, the interest in engineering among young people is waning in so many countries. Awareness of the importance and the changing nature of engineering should be raised in circles of government as well as the general public.

Economic, Social and Environmental Sustainability

In the area of engineering for economic sustainability, the challenges are to design technologies and systems that can facilitate global commerce, foster technological innovations and entrepreneurship, and help generate jobs, while minimizing environmental impacts and using resources efficiently.

In the social domain, engineering is challenged to design systems that can facilitate education and healthcare, enhance the quality of life, help eliminate global poverty, and help humans preserve their humanity in a world increasingly paced by machines. In each of these areas, the engineering contribution is indispensable, but bound to fail without a close synergy with political and economic forces. An emerging challenge to engineering is also to develop technological approaches that can help prevent or mitigate hostile acts, reduce the impact of natural disasters, and motivate humans to reduce their draw on the resources of the planet.

The traditional role of engineering in the quest for resources – from water to food, energy and materials – needs to be reinforced and expanded by new approaches, as well as in the increasingly important role of engineering in resource conservation and waste management.

Urbanization

Urbanization is a second urgent, emerging global development issue with now half the global population living in cities. In the developing world, that percentage is projected to continue to rise explosively in the foreseeable future, while the developed world is already largely urbanized. This makes global sustainability increasingly affected by the impact of cities, large and small. The rapidly changing demographic profiles of cities, challenge engineering to address the needs of the massive wave of young populations in cities of the developing world, without neglecting their eventual greying as their life expectancy increases, already a burgeoning problem in the developed world. This will require rethinking the design of many interfaces between humans and artifacts to facilitate their use. The urban engineering challenges are to help find ways to provide for this tidal wave of urban growth with solutions for adequate housing, mobility, water, sanitation, electricity, telecommunications, and clean air for all citizens by using local resources as much as possible to develop infrastructure systems that can follow the expansion of urban areas, and thus help reduce the horrendous blight of urban poverty by creating new job opportunities. Urbanization also requires the improvement of quality of life in cities by managing congestion and reducing pollution and noise – in any country.

With the continuing expansion of cities over areas at risk from earthquakes and volcanic eruptions, inundations, devastating storms and tsunamis, and with cities becoming frequent targets of hostile activities, engineering is ever more challenged to find ways to enhance the protection of the populations at risk through more robust and resilient infrastructures, more effective warning systems, and more realistic evacuation or shelter-in-place plans.

Throughout the range of urban sustainability needs of the developing world, good enough solutions will have to be engineered that are more affordable than the traditional ones of the developed world, and that can rapidly satisfy a majority of needs. They range from cheaper and faster construction, to simpler maintenance and repair, ‘green’ energy-, material- and environment-saving technologies, more flexible urban mobility solutions (as in bus rapid transport (BRT) systems) and telecommunications systems that provide broadband interconnections without expensive land links.

Globalization

Globalization of the world economy presents engineering with a third major set of challenges: to help provide populations, regions and individuals with access to global knowledge, markets and institutions by enhancing transportation systems, the diffusion of information and fast Internet technologies, the provision of technical training required to participate in the global economy, and through the development of common standards to facilitate the synergies of engineering capacities across the globe.

New fundamental engineering endeavors

New and prospective challenges in four fundamental engineering domains: materials, energy, information and systems, as well as bioengineering, offer vast new possibilities for the future. In the domain of materials: it is becoming increasingly possible through nanotechnology and bio nanotechnology to create, ion-by-ion, atom-by-atom, or molecule-by-molecule, materials with a broad range of capabilities, from enhanced structural strength to sensing, transferring energy, interacting with light at the scale of light’s wavelength, and changing characteristics on command. This will have the effect of revolutionizing manufacturing, construction and infrastructures. Composite materials, also utilizing a variety of natural materials, make it possible to create strong, lightweight structures. Large-scale self-assembly of materials and microstructures is a more distant but important possibility. Materials and energy are linked in the emerging concept of deconstructable structures and in the development of recycling, so as to reuse as much as possible the materials and the energy embedded within them.

In the energy domain: developments in fuel cells, biomass and waste incinerators, bacterial electricity generators, biofuel engines, photovoltaic generators and thermal collectors with greater efficiencies, in both large and small scale advanced wind turbines and in micro-hydro turbines, all have immediate applications to development. High-voltage superconducting direct current lines offer the prospect – by reducing long distance power losses – to capture distant sources of energy and to transmit energy globally. Also of considerable potential impact is the demonstrated possibility of using the energy from walking in order to generate a current sufficient enough to power low wattage electronic devices. A future challenge responding to a universal need is the design of batteries with greater specific storage capacity per unit weight. Advanced new lighting systems can replace CO₂ generating fuel burning lamps and fires as well as inefficient incandescent bulbs. Nuclear fusion is still a hope of distant realization, but building a large number of advanced, inherently stable fission reactors with a safe proliferation-proof fuel cycle to supply base power will become increasingly necessary to reduce greenhouse emissions, and in the absence of other kinds of energy supply.

Job gains are expected in nine of the 10 countries surveyed in the Americas. Hiring confidence strengthens in four countries, declines in four, and is unchanged in two when compared to the final three months of 2016. Year-over-year, hiring prospects improve in four countries but weaken in the remaining six. The strongest first-quarter hiring plans are reported in both Guatemala and the United States, while employers in Brazil expect payrolls to shrink for the eighth consecutive quarter and report the weakest hiring plans across the region as well as across the globe.

Employers expect staffing levels to increase by varying degrees in 23 of 25 countries in the Europe, Middle East & Africa (EMEA) region. When compared quarter over- quarter, hiring plans improve in 12 countries, weaken in 10 and are unchanged in three. In a year over- year comparison, outlooks improve in 15 countries, decline in seven and are unchanged in two. The region's most optimistic first quarter hiring plans are reported in Hungary and Slovenia with employers in both countries expecting the strongest labor market activity since the surveys were launched in their respective countries. Conversely, the weakest employer sentiment is reported in Switzerland where the outlook slips into negative territory for the first time in two years and in Italy where labor market activity is expected to be flat in the first three months of the year. Employers in all eight Asia Pacific countries and territories expect workforce gains in the January- March time frame. When first-quarter forecasts are compared with the final three months of 2016, hiring plans strengthen in three countries/territories, weaken in three and are unchanged in two. In a year-over-year comparison hiring is expected to accelerate only in New Zealand, slow in five other countries/territories and remain unchanged in two. Taiwanese employers expect the strongest hiring pace in the region as well as across the globe. Meanwhile, Chinese employers report the region's most cautious hiring plans.

Global Economy: A Firming Recovery

The pickup in global growth anticipated in the April World Economic Outlook remains on track, with global output projected to grow by 3.5 percent in 2017 and 3.6 percent in 2018. The unchanged global growth projections mask somewhat different contributions at the country level. U.S. growth projections are lower than in April, primarily reflecting the assumption that fiscal policy will be less expansionary going forward than previously anticipated. Growth has been revised up for Japan and especially the euro area, where positive surprises to activity in late 2016 and early 2017 point to solid momentum. China's growth projections have also been revised up, reflecting a strong first quarter of 2017 and expectations of continued fiscal support. Inflation in advanced economies remains subdued and generally below targets; it has also been declining in several emerging economies, such as Brazil, India, and Russia.

While risks around the global growth forecast appear broadly balanced in the near term, they remain skewed to the downside over the medium term. On the upside, the cyclical rebound could be stronger and more sustained in Europe, where political risk has diminished. On the downside, rich market valuations and very low volatility in an environment of high policy uncertainty raise the likelihood of a market correction, which could dampen growth and confidence. The more supportive policy tilt in China, especially strong credit growth, comes with rising downside risks to medium-term growth. Monetary policy normalization in some advanced economies, notably the United States, could trigger a faster-than-anticipated tightening in global financial conditions. And other risks discussed in the April 2017 WEO, including a turn toward inward looking policies and geopolitical risks, remain salient.

Projected global growth rates for 2017–18, though higher than the 3.2 percent estimated for 2016, are below pre-crisis averages, especially for most advanced economies and for commodity-exporting emerging and developing economies. Among the former, many face excess capacity as well as headwinds to potential growth from aging populations, weak investment, and slowly advancing productivity. In view of weak core inflation and muted wage pressures, policy settings should remain consistent with lifting inflation expectations in line with targets, closing output gaps, and—where appropriate—external rebalancing. Reforms to boost potential output are of the essence, and slow aggregate output growth makes it even more important that gains are shared widely across the income distribution. Financial stability risks need close monitoring in many emerging economies. Commodity exporters should continue adjusting to lower revenues, while diversifying their sources of growth over time.

The Global Economy Maintains Momentum

The cyclical recovery continues. Growth outturns in the first quarter of 2017 were higher than the April WEO forecasts in large emerging and developing economies such as Brazil, China, and Mexico, and in several advanced economies including Canada, France, Germany, Italy, and Spain. High-frequency indicators for the second quarter provide signs of continued strengthening of global activity. Specifically, growth in global trade and industrial production remained well above 2015–16 rates despite retreating from the very strong pace registered in late 2016 and early 2017. Purchasing managers' indices (PMIs) signal sustained strength ahead in manufacturing and services.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

Commodities and inflation:

Oil prices have receded, reflecting strong inventory levels in the United States and a pickup in supply. Headline inflation also generally softened as the impact of the commodity price rebound of the second half of 2016 faded, and remains at levels well below central bank targets in most advanced economies. Core inflation has remained broadly stable. It has largely been stable in emerging economies as well, with a few, such as Brazil and Russia, witnessing strong declines.

Bond and equity markets:

Long-term bond yields in advanced economies, which had declined since March, rebounded in late June and early July. The U.S. Federal Reserve raised short-term interest rates in June, but markets still expect a very gradual path of U.S. monetary policy normalization. Bond spreads over Germany have compressed sharply in France, Italy, and Spain on reduced electoral uncertainty and firming signs of recovery. Equity prices in advanced economies remain strong, signaling continued market optimism regarding corporate earnings. Markets are also optimistic about emerging market prospects as reflected in strengthening equity markets and some further compression of interest rate spreads. Oil exporters provide an exception to this pattern, in light of the marked weakening of oil prices since March.

Exchange rates and capital flows:

As of end-June, the U.S. dollar has depreciated by around 3½ percent in real effective terms since March, while the euro has strengthened by a similar amount on increased confidence in the euro area recovery and a decline in political risk. Over the same period, exchange rate changes across emerging market currencies have been relatively modest, with some strengthening of the Mexican peso on tighter monetary policy and reduced concerns about U.S. trade frictions, and a depreciation of the Brazilian real on renewed political uncertainty. Capital flows to emerging economies have been resilient in the first few months of 2017, with a notable pickup in non-resident portfolio inflows.

Global Growth Forecast to pick up in 2017 and 2018

Global growth for 2016 is now estimated at 3.2 percent, slightly stronger than the April 2017 forecast, primarily reflecting much higher growth in Iran and stronger activity in India following national accounts revisions. Economic activity in both advanced economies and emerging and developing economies is forecast to accelerate in 2017, to 2 percent and 4.6 percent respectively, with global growth projected to be 3.5 percent, unchanged from the April forecast. The growth forecast for 2018 is 1.9 percent for advanced economies, 0.1 percentage point below the April 2017 WEO, and 4.8 percent for emerging and developing economies, the same as in the spring. The 2018 global growth forecast is unchanged at 3.6 percent. The revisions reflect primarily the macroeconomic implications of changes in policy assumptions for the world's two largest economies, the United States and China, as discussed below.

Advanced economies

- The growth forecast in the United States has been revised down from 2.3 percent to 2.1 percent in 2017 and from 2.5 percent to 2.1 percent in 2018. While the markdown in the 2017 forecast reflects in part the weak growth outturn in the first quarter of the year, the major factor behind the growth revision, especially for 2018, is the assumption that fiscal policy will be less expansionary than previously assumed, given the uncertainty about the timing and nature of U.S. fiscal policy changes. Market expectations of fiscal stimulus have also receded.
- The growth forecast has also been revised down for the United Kingdom for 2017 on weaker-than-expected activity in the first quarter.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

- By contrast, growth projections for 2017 have been revised up for many euro area countries, including France, Germany, Italy, and Spain, where growth for the first quarter of 2017 was generally above expectations. This, together with positive growth revisions for the last quarter of 2016 and high-frequency indicators for the second quarter of 2017, indicate stronger momentum in domestic demand than previously anticipated.
- The growth forecast for 2017 was also revised up for Canada, where buoyant domestic demand boosted first-quarter growth to 3.7 percent and indicators suggest resilient second-quarter activity, and marginally for Japan, where private consumption, investment, and exports supported first-quarter growth.

Emerging and developing economies

Emerging and developing economies are projected to see a sustained pickup in activity, with growth rising from 4.3 percent in 2016 to 4.6 percent in 2017 and 4.8 percent in 2018. These forecasts reflect upward revisions, relative to April, of 0.2 percentage point for 2016, and 0.1 percentage points for 2017. As in the most recent WEO forecast vintages, growth is primarily driven by commodity importers, but its pickup reflects to an important extent gradually improving conditions in large commodity exporters that experienced recessions in 2015–16, in many cases caused or exacerbated by declining commodity prices.

- China's growth is expected to remain at 6.7 percent in 2017, the same level as in 2016, and to decline only modestly in 2018 to 6.4 percent. The forecast for 2017 was revised up by 0.1 percentage point, reflecting the stronger than expected outturn in the first quarter of the year underpinned by previous policy easing and supply-side reforms (including efforts to reduce excess capacity in the industrial sector). For 2018, the upward revision of 0.2 percentage point mainly reflects an expectation that the authorities will delay the needed fiscal adjustment (especially by maintaining high public investment) to meet their target of doubling 2010 real GDP by 2020. Delay comes at the cost of further large increases in debt, however, so downside risks around this baseline have also increased.
- Growth in India is forecast to pick up further in 2017 and 2018, in line with the April 2017 forecast. While activity slowed following the currency exchange initiative, growth for 2016—at 7.1 percent—was higher than anticipated due to strong government spending and data revisions that show stronger momentum in the first part of the year. With a pickup in global trade and strengthening domestic demand, growth in the ASEAN-5 economies is projected to remain robust at around 5 percent, with generally strong first quarter outturns leading to a slight upward revision for 2017 relative to the April WEO.
- In Emerging and Developing Europe, growth is projected to pick up in 2017, primarily driven by a higher growth forecast for Turkey, where exports recovered strongly in the last quarter of 2016 and the first quarter of 2017 following four quarters of moderate contraction, and external demand is projected to be stronger with improved prospects for euro area trading partners. The Russian economy is projected to recover gradually in 2017 and 2018, in line with the April forecast.
- After contracting in 2016, economic activity in Latin America is projected to recover gradually in 2017–18 as a few countries—including Argentina and Brazil—exit their recessions. In comparison to the April 2017 WEO, Brazil's growth forecast for 2017 is now higher in light of the strong first quarter, but ongoing weakness in domestic demand and an increase in political and policy uncertainty will be reflected in a more subdued pace of recovery, and hence in lower projected growth in 2018. Mexico's growth forecast for 2017 is revised up from 1.7 to 1.9 percent on the back of strong activity in the first quarter of the year, with an unchanged forecast for 2018. Revisions for the rest of the region are mostly to the downside, including a further deterioration of conditions in Venezuela.
- Growth in the Middle East, North Africa, AfghANIstan, and Pakistan region is projected to slow considerably in 2017, reflecting primarily a slowdown in activity in oil exporters, before recovering in 2018. The 2017–18 forecast is broadly unchanged relative to the April 2017 WEO, but the growth outcome in 2016 is estimated to have been considerably stronger in light of higher growth in Iran. The recent decline in oil prices, if sustained, could weigh further on the outlook for the region's oil exporters.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

- In Sub-Saharan Africa, the outlook remains challenging. Growth is projected to rise in 2017 and 2018, but will barely return to positive territory in per capita terms this year for the region as a whole—and would remain negative for about a third of the countries in the region. The slight upward revision to 2017 growth relative to the April 2017 WEO forecast reflects a modest upgrading of growth prospects for South Africa, which is experiencing a bumper crop due to better rainfall and an increase in mining output prompted by a moderate rebound in commodity prices. However, the outlook for South Africa remains difficult, with elevated political uncertainty and weak consumer and business confidence, and the country's growth forecast was consequently marked down for 2018.

Risks

Short-term risks are broadly balanced, but medium-term risks are still skewed to the downside. Risks to the U.S. forecast are two sided: the implementation of a fiscal stimulus (such as revenue-reducing tax reform) could drive U.S. demand and output growth above the baseline forecast, while implementation of the expenditure based consolidation proposed in the Administration's budget would drive them lower. On the upside, the pickup in activity in the euro area, with buoyant market sentiment and reduced political risks, could be stronger and more durable than currently projected. On the downside, protracted policy uncertainty or other shocks could trigger a correction in rich market valuations, especially for equities, and an increase in volatility from current very low levels. In turn, this could dent spending and confidence more generally, especially in countries with high financial vulnerabilities. Lower commodity prices would further exacerbate macroeconomic strains and complicate adjustment needs in many commodity exporters. Other downside risks threatening the strength and durability of the recovery include:

- A more protracted period of policy uncertainty-Despite a decline in election related risks, policy uncertainty remains at a high level and could well rise further, reflecting—for example—difficult-to-predict U.S. regulatory and fiscal policies, negotiations of post-Brexit arrangements, or geopolitical risks. This could harm confidence, deter private investment, and weaken growth.
- Financial tensions- In China, failure to continue the recent focus on addressing financial sector risks and curb excessive credit growth (mainly through tighter macro prudential policy settings) could result in an abrupt growth slowdown, with adverse spillovers to other countries through trade, commodity price, and confidence channels. A faster-than expected monetary policy normalization in the United States could tighten global financial conditions and trigger reversals in capital flows to emerging economies, along with U.S. dollar appreciation, straining emerging economies with large leverage, U.S. dollar pegs, or balance sheet mismatches. At the same time, to the extent that such monetary policy tightening reflects a stronger U.S. outlook, U.S. trading partners would benefit from positive demand spillovers. In some euro area countries, weak bank balance sheets and an unfavorable profitability outlook could interact with higher political risks to reignite financial stability concerns, and a rise in long-term interest rates would worsen public debt dynamics. Finally, a broad rollback of the strengthening of financial regulation and oversight achieved since the crisis—both nationally and internationally—could lower capital and liquidity buffers or weaken supervisory effectiveness, with negative repercussions for global financial stability.
- Inward-looking policies- Over the longer term, failure to lift potential growth and make growth more inclusive could fuel protectionism and hinder market-friendly reforms. The results could include disrupted global supply chains, lower global productivity, and less affordable tradable consumer goods, which harm low income households disproportionately.
- Noneconomic factors- Rising geopolitical tensions, domestic political discord, and shocks arising from weak governance and corruption can all weigh on economic activity.

These risks are interconnected and can be mutually reinforcing. For example, an inward turn in policies could be associated with increased geopolitical tensions as well as with rising global risk aversion; noneconomic shocks can weigh directly on economic activity as well as harm confidence and market sentiment; and a faster than-anticipated tightening of global financial conditions or a shift toward protectionism in advanced economies could reignite capital outflow pressures from emerging markets.

Policies

ANI Integrated Services Limited

Policy choices will therefore be crucial in shaping the outlook and reducing risks.

- Strengthening the momentum.

With countries at present facing divergent cyclical conditions, differing stances of monetary and fiscal policy remain appropriate. In advanced economies where demand is still lacking and inflation too low, monetary and (where feasible) fiscal support should continue; elsewhere monetary policy should normalize gradually, in line with economic developments, and fiscal policy should focus on supporting reforms aimed at expanding the economy's supply potential. Countries in need of fiscal consolidation should do so with growth-friendly measures. Emerging market economies should continue to allow exchange rates to buffer shocks, wherever possible.

- Making growth resilient and balanced.

Efforts to accelerate private sector balance sheet repair and ensure sustainability of public debt are critical foundations for a resilient recovery. So are efforts from surplus and deficit countries alike to reduce excess current account imbalances.

- Sustaining high and inclusive growth in the long term.

This goal calls for well sequenced and tailored structural reforms to boost productivity and investment, measures to narrow gender labor force participation gaps, and active support for those hurt by shifts in technology or trade.

- Enhancing resilience in low-income countries.

Among low-income developing countries, commodity exporters generally need sizable adjustment to correct macroeconomic imbalances, a challenge that would be exacerbated for fuel exporters by a persistent decline in oil prices. Policy priorities for diversified low income developing countries vary, given the diversity of country circumstances, but an overarching goal for these economies should be to enhance resilience against potential future shocks by strengthening fiscal positions and foreign reserves holdings while growth is strong.

- Working toward shared prosperity

A well-functioning multilateral framework for international economic relations is another key ingredient of strong, sustainable, balanced, and inclusive growth. Pursuit of zero-sum policies can only end by hurting all countries, as history shows. Because national policies inevitably interact and create spillovers across countries, the world economy works far better for all when policymakers engage in regular dialogue and work within agreed mechanisms to resolve disagreements. A rule-based and open world trading system is especially vital for global prosperity, but it must be supported by domestic policies to facilitate adjustment, not only to trade but to rapid technological change.

- Cooperating to ensure evenhandedness.

At the same time, the international community should continue to adapt the multilateral system to the changing global economy. Active dialogue and cooperation will help to improve and modernize the rules, while addressing valid country concerns. This process will ensure continued mutual benefits and evenhandedness. Together with strong domestic policies, it will also help avoid a broad withdrawal from multilateralism, either through widespread protectionism or a competitive race to the bottom in financial and regulatory oversight, which would leave all countries worse off.

Indian Economy

Economic growth is projected to remain strong and India will remain the fastest growing G20 economy. The increase in public wages and pensions will support consumption. Private investment will recover gradually as excess capacity diminishes, and the landmark Goods and Services Tax and other measures to improve the ease of doing business are being implemented. However, large non-performing loans and high leverage of some companies are holding back investment.

Monetary policy is projected to remain tight as inflation expectations have still not fully adjusted down. The need to reduce the relatively high public-debt-to-GDP ratio leaves little room for fiscal stimulus. However, investing more in physical and social infrastructure is critical to raising living standards for all. This should be financed by a comprehensive reform of income and property taxes. restoring credit discipline and cleaning up banks' balance sheets will be instrumental to support the credit growth needed to finance more business investment.

Trade openness has increased, partly driven by a competitive service sector. Manufacturing has lagged behind, with limited contribution to exports and job creation, leaving many workers in low-paid jobs. Promoting quality job creation in manufacturing would require reducing further restrictions on FDI and trade, modernising labour regulations and providing better education and skills. Better infrastructure, transport and logistic services would facilitate manufacturing firms' access to global markets, particularly from remote and poorer regions.

Robust consumption and a rebound in exports are boosting growth.

Growth remains strong. Private consumption has been buoyant, boosted by the increase in public wages and pensions and by higher agricultural and rural incomes. The costs of the withdrawal of high denomination notes – demonetization in November 2016 are wearing off, and sales of cars and two-wheelers have bounced back. Investment has so far failed to rebound, despite government efforts to develop rail, road and energy infrastructure and to improve the ease of doing business. Excess capacity (e.g. in the steel sector) and the weak financial position of some corporations, combined with large non-performing loans for most public sector banks, have restrained business investment.

Exports have picked up, driven by strong demand from Asia and the euro area. Higher oil prices and gold imports, coupled with a decline in remittances inflows, are reflected in some deterioration in the current account deficit. However, the deficit remains well below its longer-term average. FDI net inflows have been rising steadily since 2014 and are fully financing the current account deficit.

Structural reforms are key to promoting inclusive growth

The acceleration of structural reforms is bringing a new growth impetus. The Goods and Services Tax (GST), to be implemented from July 2017, should help make India more of a single market and thus spur productivity, investment, competitiveness, job creation and incomes. The abolition of the Foreign Investment Promotion Board, which reviewed foreign investment programmes, should promote FDI inflows. The central government's initiative to rank individual states on the ease of doing business is opening a new era of structural reforms. Many states have already modernised regulations and administrative procedures and some are experimenting with reforms of land acquisition and labour regulations.

There is little room for further cuts in interest rates. Consumer price inflation hovered below 4% at the end of 2016 and in early 2017, reflecting partly demonetisation, but also the success of the flexible inflation targeting framework. Ongoing structural reforms, including efforts to reduce the fragmentation of agricultural markets and land plots, and to develop the irrigation network, should help avoid inflation spikes in the future. In the short term, however, keeping inflation around 4% – the mid-point official inflation target – will be challenging given the roll-out of the GST and the upward adjustment in house rent allowance and in wages for state government employees.

The combined deficit and debt of the central government and states are relatively high. The central government has committed to reduce its deficit further in FY 2017/18 by better targeting fertiliser, petroleum and food subsidies. At the state level, current spending has tended to rise while investment targets have not always been met. The recent write-off of bank loans to farmers in the largest state will push up public debt, especially if other states follow suit. It could also undermine credit discipline and exacerbate income inequality since it will not benefit the poorest farmers, who rely predominantly on informal money lenders rather than banks.

Making growth more inclusive would require raising more revenue from property and personal income taxes to finance better social and physical infrastructure. Recent initiatives to benchmark states' social policies and outcomes, including health, sanitation and education, will strengthen incentives to improve the quality of public services. However, providing quality services to all would require raising public spending. Doubling public spending on health to 2.5% of GDP by 2025, as envisaged in the latest National Health Policy, and developing affordable housing for the poor would be welcome. It could be financed by removing the tax expenditures that benefit the rich most, freezing the personal income thresholds from which rates apply, reducing tax evasion and implementing fairer property taxation.

Growth increases will rest on the revival of investment

Growth is projected to increase further. Private consumption will remain steady as increases in wages and pensions for central government employees are followed by similar adjustments in the states. The recent increase in capacity utilisation, coupled with the rebound in industrial production for capital goods and manufacturing indices, bodes well for a gradual revival of private investment. The implementation of the GST, by lowering the price of capital goods, and the cut in the corporate income tax rate should also support investment. Inflation will likely increase from the low levels in early 2017, but will remain within the authorities' target band. The revival of (import-intensive) corporate investment, higher oil prices and lower remittance flows will be reflected in a larger current account deficit. The prospect of further structural reform is a clear positive risk for growth. The deterioration in the quality of banks' portfolios, as shown by the increase in nonperforming loans and stressed assets, risks damping investment and growth. India, as a net commodity importer, would suffer from higher commodity prices. Protectionist measures could restrict exports of goods and services and thus harm the economy's potential to create quality jobs.

ENGINEERING INDUSTRY

Engineering and construction companies plan to invest 5% of annual revenue in digital operations solutions per annum over the next five years. And they are setting themselves ambitious targets for the level of digitization and integration that can be achieved. Technologies such as building information modeling (BIM) and the integration of design and off-site component based assembly are evolving fast and coming of age. At the same time, new innovations offer future integration and productivity opportunities and the increased ability to monitor assets over the lifecycle rather than just the construction phase. Autonomous vehicles can provide driverless transportation of materials between sites and on-site. Flying robots and drone surveillance offer the prospect of easier planning, design, monitoring and execution of projects as well use in repairs and maintenance activities.

Product development and engineering is the area where engineering and construction companies rate themselves as furthest advanced down the digitization and integration road. This reflects the importance of the growth of digital design and engineering in the construction sector. Digital solutions include features such as automated data acquisition, storage and access; construction sequencing; progress monitoring; and virtual rehearsal.

That's not to say that there are no bright spots for E&C companies. In the U.S., construction starts were up about 15 percent in 2015 and are forecast to advance another 6 percent this year. Also, infrastructure spending has been neglected since the 2008 recession and some analysts believe that worldwide annual infrastructure spending will grow to more than US$9 trillion per year by 2025, from a little over $4 trillion now — that is, if the political will can be mustered to support much-needed improvements. In addition to the fundamental economic stresses on the E&C sector, established companies face intensifying competition from firms in low-cost nations, which weighs on E&C profit margins and has driven many in the industry to commoditize their services. To make up for it, some E&C companies have turned to a mergers and acquisition strategy centered on acquiring companies offering promising new sources of value in new geographies, new lines of business, or both.

The Technology Puzzle

ANI Integrated Services Limited

In general, the engineering and construction industry has been slow to adopt new technologies; indeed, some firms are still using paper-based processes that can only be described as archaic. However, as a reaction to tight margins, a few E&C companies have recently automated and streamlined ways to carry out projects, not just in the design and engineering phase, but in construction as well.

Among the ways to cut costs, firms have offshored and consolidated design centers and adopted BIM (building information modeling) systems to automate much of the work of design and engineering and to supply critical information to workers on the construction site itself. Workers can also share information across project sites and send it back to the home office. These programs have reduced wasteful discrepancies and rework and boosted safety. Such technologies also let companies simulate the construction of just about anything before the project begins, instead of having to figure things out during the construction phase. Companies can perform detailed analyses of costs and scheduling as well.

The most cutting-edge firms are using 3D printing to produce components and drones to inspect sites. Although these techniques have the potential to speed up the design and execution of projects and to lower costs considerably, they must be implemented as the centerpiece of a larger strategic platform. If they are not, the gains will dissipate within the ongoing commoditization of the services provided by E&C companies. Simply put, for E&C companies, the trick is not to delay the adoption of new technologies, but rather to figure out how to use these tools to differentiate them from the competition.

It's a two-step process. First, the E&C firm must use collaborative technologies to develop a complete archive of every aspect of the engineering and construction process for current and past projects, gathering information from subcontractors and suppliers throughout the construction chain. The company can then leverage this data to provide its customers with a fuller and more transparent picture of the progress of their projects, and to do so nearly in real time. Second, having demonstrated to customers its ability to achieve better performance, better communication, and open interactions at lower cost throughout the project, the E&C firm will be positioned to outclass its rivals for future efforts.

With this strategic approach, E&C companies can win the volume jobs and use their skills with new technologies to profit from standardized projects, such as natural gas terminals, even as prices fall. And at the same time, they will be front-runners for more complex projects in difficult geographies, because their reputation for advanced capabilities will serve as a calling card.

Market size

The E&C sector has been in the throes of consolidation for the past few years. Long a highly fragmented business, especially in design and engineering, the industry is finally shifting. Firms are now looking for greater value through acquisitions — they want to enter new geographic and vertical markets, to diversify or narrow their service offerings, to become more vertically integrated, and to boost their talent pool. The sheer number of deals remained high in 2015. There were few if any true megamergers; virtually all the deals involved big companies buying smaller companies to serve a particular strategic objective.

Sometimes expansion is the goal: AECOM's 2014 acquisition of rival URS for $4 billion significantly enhanced AECOM's global client base, primarily for power distribution and oil and gas projects. More typically, firms make acquisitions to target particular geographic markets. That can be risky — URS bought Flint Energy Services in 2012 to gain traction in western Canada's oil sands region, a deal that might have struggled in the face of the recent collapse in oil prices. A further motivation involves buying another firm in order to gain entry into a particular services area, either to augment a company's current services portfolio or to move up the value chain in search of less commoditized offerings.

As the talent shortage in the sector becomes more acute, E&C firms are also making acquisitions simply to build up their talent pools. This is particularly the case in construction, which is graying quickly and becoming more dependent on talent in specific locations. (Design and engineering, in contrast, have benefited more from globalization and technology, allowing firms to hire younger skilled people and put them to work anywhere in the world.)

Consolidation as a strategy, however, won't succeed unless the engineering and construction firm understands its market well, to the point of being able to forecast growth areas that can be targeted better by an acquisition. Firms need to fully understand the markets they want to get into, the best way to get into them, and the particular differentiating capabilities those markets require for success. With that insight in mind, E&C companies can undertake acquisitions with a disciplined view of the skills they need and how they plan to use the acquisition to differentiate themselves from competitors. Acquisitions must be made carefully, with an eye toward how the combined companies are integrated and create unique value in the market. The deal must also complement the acquiring company's current services portfolio, be accretive to earnings, and fit clearly into the growth strategy.

No matter what path E&C firms decide to take in order to escape the commoditization trap — whether through better technology, new geographies, augmented services portfolios, or fresh talent — success will be determined by those who can differentiate themselves from the crowded pack. Companies must ask themselves what their source of competitive differentiation is, what they do well, and what is no longer helping them. If they can't answer these questions and then gain differentiation through new technologies, organic growth, or acquisitions, they won't create value for their customers, or themselves. Differentiation means getting there first, and the coming years will soon sort out the winners in this race.

Government Regulatory framework

ANI Integrated Services Limited

India's National Manufacturing Policy (NMP) aims to increase the percentage contribution of the manufacturing industry in India's GDP from its current 16 per cent to 25 per cent, by 2022. In order to achieve this significant target, the Government of India has introduced various tax incentives and other key initiatives to support and encourage the growth of the engineering sector. India also plans to facilitate five more National Manufacturing and Investment Zones (NIMZs), each spread over 5,000 hectares, with world-class infrastructure, clean technologies and skill development institutes.

Tax incentives to Special Economic Zones (SEZ):

- The government provides tax incentives to units in special economic zones (SEZs) focused on manufacturing activities, a move which is expected to attract investments to these zones
- Minimum Alternate Tax (MAT) and Dividend Distribution Tax (DDT) on SEZs are expected to reduce in the coming years

Mandatory Procurement from Small & Medium scale Enterprises (SMEs):

Every Central Ministry, department and Public Sector Undertaking has been mandated to set an annual goal of procurement from SMEs. The objective is to achieve minimum 20 per cent overall procurement of total annual purchases from SMEs within three years.

Current Trend in the Indian Engineering Industry

In the last few years, India has emerged as a global engineering hub. Several global manufacturing majors have partnered with Indian firms in setting up successful engineering units across the country. A few of these include Alstom (France), Ansaldo (Italy), Babcock (UK), Colfax Corporation, GE (USA), Hitachi (Japan), Legrand (France), MHI (Japan), Schneider Electric (France), and Toshiba (Japan). One of the key areas of focus for domestic players has also been technology up-gradation. Several firms have formed strategic alliances with technology suppliers to upgrade their production and processing capabilities. With the entry of foreign players, competition has further increased, spurring domestic investment in technology to significantly improve production quality and capacity. Increasingly, domestic players are securing ISO 9,000 accreditation to further strengthen their position in the global market.

India advantage:

Industry growth in the export market has been driven by unique local advantages. These include:

- Low cost of labour force: India's manufacturing wages are among the lowest worldwide, averaging US$ 1.50 per hour
- Demographic dividend: India's abundant labour force is English-speaking, young, skilled, and cost efficient
- Free Trade Agreements: India is one of more than 10 nations that have signed Free Trade Agreements. It is a signatory to the ASEAN-India Free Trade Area and provides companies' access to one of the world's largest FTAs.
- Growing domestic market: Rapid economic growth has provided a large domestic market for manufacturers
- Strategic location: Manufacturing in India gives companies direct access to the vast domestic and South Asian market

Investments

The engineering sector in India attracts immense interest from foreign players as it enjoys a comparative advantage in terms of manufacturing costs, technology and innovation. The above, coupled with favourable regulatory policies and growth in the manufacturing sector has enabled several foreign players to invest in India.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

Future of the Indian Engineering Sector:

India's engineering sector is expected to grow by almost 25 per cent annually during the period 2015-18. Increased investment in infrastructure, favourable government policies, new oil & gas power and metallurgy projects are expected to give this segment the required fillip. Spending in this sector is expected to reach US$ 1.1 trillion by 2020. The export market also helped establish brand recall for the local players, in the global scene. As a result emerging services such as new product design, product improvement, maintenance, and manufacturing systems design are getting progressively outsourced to these Indian firms.

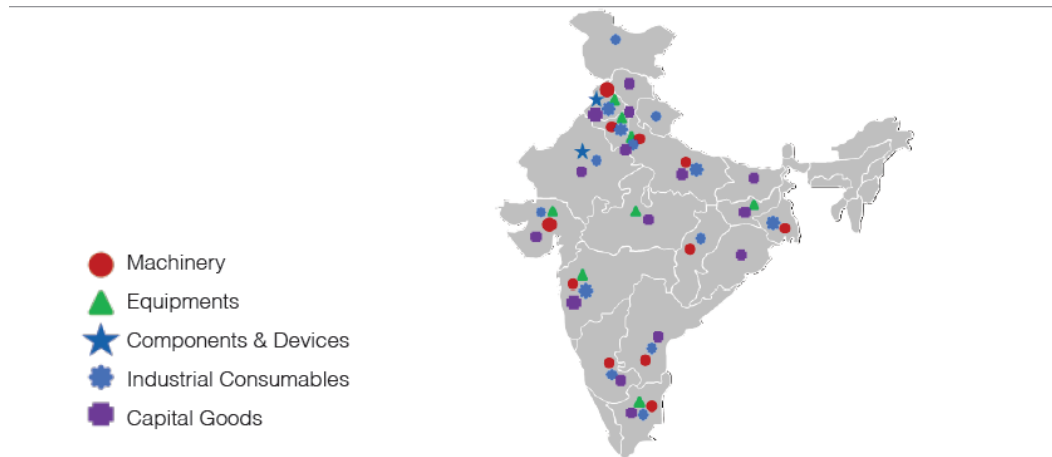

The Government of India (GoI) launched the National Manufacturing Policy in 2012 with two important objectives:

- To increase the contribution of the manufacturing sector to India's GDP to 25 per cent within a period of ten years
- To create 100 million jobs by 2022

In order to achieve this target, GoI has introduced several initiatives and incentives to give further impetus to this sector.

- The Indian government has appointed the Engineering Export Promotion Council (EEPC) to be the apex body in charge of promotion of engineering goods, products and services from India.
- Recent government initiatives like Make In India campaign & Vibrant Gujarat summit aims to boost manufacturing sector in India

Engineering companies in India employ a dual go-to market strategy, focusing on a single channel such as a large distributor or direct dealer, or utilising multiple channels of distribution. While most Indian engineering firms approach the market through large distributors, leading MNCs have also adopted the channel of traditional or direct dealers.

GLOBAL STAFFING INDUSTRY

Engineering continues to be one of the most robust professions. It's one that offers immense gratification along with concrete economic benefits. It's backed up by the fact that the unemployment rate among engineers is currently about half the national average. Also, engineers end up in other leading positions like management and legislation, and other jobs that benefit the economy. The engineering jobs that offer the highest compensation are in ocean ($169,000), followed by cost management ($129,500), petroleum ($127,043), safety ($125,000), minerals and metals ($121,000), and fire protection ($116,000).

Job prospects are very good in the energy industry. The hiring rate which has been fairly rapid over the last several years, has flattened off a little bit as though hiring engineers in energy industry still continues because of attrition and engineers moving into other positions like management or planning. Engineers will continue to be in demand in the future as well. Fresh graduates with engineering degrees are also getting some of the highest salary offers, as reported by U.S. News & World Report. According to the findings of a recent survey conducted by the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE), employers surveyed say they plan to hire 9.5 percent more graduates from the class of 2012 than they did from the class of 2011. There is a need for engineers with not only basic skills, but also engineers who understand the commercialization of the product. They need to be innovative and also look at what the market will be for those products. Global companies are also looking for engineers who can work across borders, and understand a foreign culture and language. That will be an even greater asset to any engineer to have those types of skills. It actually has never been a better time to be an engineer. Engineers are core and central to innovation and improving the quality of life in the country and the world.

The critical roles of engineering in addressing the large-scale pressing challenges facing our societies worldwide are widely recognized. Such large-scale challenges include access to affordable health care; tackling the coupled issues of energy, transportation and climate change; providing more equitable access to information for our populations; clean drinking water; natural and man-made disaster mitigation, environmental protection and natural resource management, among numerous others. As such, mobilizing the engineering community to become more effective in delivering real products and services of benefit to society, especially in the developing world, is a vitally important international responsibility. Engineering as a human endeavour is also facing numerous additional challenges of its own, including attracting and retaining broader cross-sections of our youth, particularly women; strengthening the educational enterprise; forging more effective interdisciplinary alliances with the natural and social sciences and the arts; enhancing our focus on innovation, entrepreneurship and job creation, and; promoting increased public awareness and support for the engineering enterprise.

CAETS, the International Council of Academies of Engineering and Technological Sciences, recognizes the importance of revitalizing engineering as a profession. Engineers are responsible for technological development that has created our modern society; they have built infrastructure, industrial production, mechanized agriculture, modern transportation systems, and technological innovations such as mass media, computers and communication systems. Technological development is continuing at an ever-increasing pace, especially in new areas such as information and communication technology, nanotechnology and biotechnology. These developments are exciting, require increased engineering capacity and deserve public acclaim. Technological innovations have created wealth, facilitated our life and provided comfort. Prosperity and economic development are not distributed equally over the world. Realization of the United Nations Millennium Development Goals will require significant effort by engineers, but also creativity because the contexts of developing countries often requires new ways of doing things or the rediscovery of traditional techniques.

There is growing demand for engineering talent from a growing and developing global population. And the nature of engineering is changing. Engineering has always been multi-disciplinary in nature, combining physics, chemistry and mathematics with creative design, invention and innovation; but its scope is increasing. Engineers, more and more, have to be aware of the social and environmental impacts of technology, and have to work in complex teams, interacting and cooperating with society. It is unfortunate that, under these circumstances of growing need for multi-talented engineers, the interest in engineering among young people is waning in so many countries. Awareness of the importance and the changing nature of engineering should be raised in circles of government as well as the general public.

Economic, Social and Environmental Sustainability

In the area of engineering for economic sustainability, the challenges are to design technologies and systems that can facilitate global commerce, foster technological innovations and entrepreneurship, and help generate jobs, while minimizing environmental impacts and using resources efficiently.

In the social domain, engineering is challenged to design systems that can facilitate education and healthcare, enhance the quality of life, help eliminate global poverty, and help humans preserve their humanity in a world increasingly paced by machines. In each of these areas, the engineering contribution is indispensable, but bound to fail without a close synergy with political and economic forces. An emerging challenge to engineering is also to develop technological approaches that can help prevent or mitigate hostile acts, reduce the impact of natural disasters, and motivate humans to reduce their draw on the resources of the planet.

The traditional role of engineering in the quest for resources – from water to food, energy and materials – needs to be reinforced and expanded by new approaches, as well as in the increasingly important role of engineering in resource conservation and waste management.

The uneven distribution of water across continents and regions and its limited availability make enormous demands on engineering skills, from devising more effective systems for water and wastewater treatment and for recycling, to desalination, reducing evaporation losses in reservoirs, stanching the large amount of leakage from old distribution systems and building new recirculation systems.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

Food supply, doubled by the green revolution in the last quarter of the previous century, is again threatening to become insufficient because of the increasing demands of rapidly growing populations and economies, the increasing use of agricultural land for the development of biofuels, and the depletion of fish stocks. This calls for new engineering approaches, including aquaculture and applications of genetics. In many countries, the large percentage of food spoiled in storage and transport is a problem that we can no longer defer. Neither can the threats to food security that are heightened by climate change, affecting 30 per cent of farmers in developing countries, and which will place new demands on agricultural engineering and global logistics.

In energy, engineering is challenged to continue to improve technologies for the collection, in all its manifestations, of the inexhaustible but widely dispersed solar energy, for the extraction of oil, for tapping thermal energy from the interior of the Earth, and for providing environmentally sustainable power and light to large segments of the world's population. Integration into power grids of large amounts of intermittent solar and wind power is a major challenge, and so is the devising of economical storage mechanisms – large and small – that would have widespread utility, including also the reduction of power plant capacities required to supply power at peak hours. Improvement in efficiency of energy utilization to reduce the large percentage (about 50 per cent) of global energy supply wasted is a global engineering challenge of the first magnitude, and so is the decarbonization of emissions from fossil fuel power plants, e.g. through underground gasification and deep coal deposits. The need to replace liquid hydrocarbons, which power much of the world's transportation systems, is particularly urgent, and the prospect of doing so by biomolecular engineering of plant microbes or by hydrogen fuel cells is emerging as a more desirable possibility than making biofuels from agricultural biomass.

The challenges in the area of material resources are to find more sustainable substitutes (as in the structural use of composites, soil, plastic refuse and agricultural byproducts), so as to reutilize those in scarce supply, such as copper, to recycle them and to develop effective closed cycles of materials flow between production and utilization.

In the area of environment, engineering is challenged to help reduce the encroachment of the footprints that human habitats and activities leave on it, from the destruction caused by expanding human habitats and by conflicts, to the indiscriminate mining and transformation of resources, the impact of dams on wildlife, the emissions to the atmosphere of health threatening and global warming gases, as well as the higher atmospheric temperatures over cities that also contribute to global warming; the 'heat island' phenomenon. Increased efficiencies in the use of all resources, moderation of consumption, recycling of materials, conflict resolution, containment of sprawl, and alternative forms of energy become ever more imperative engineering challenges. So is the ever greater waste disposal problem, including the thorny problem of nuclear waste, to protect human health and the environment. The preservation of the integrity of critical habitats of other species to enable them to coexist with human activities demands careful infrastructural design and site planning. All these challenges can only be overcome through the synergy of new technologies and public understanding of the necessity of new policies.

Urbanization

Urbanization is a second urgent, emerging global development issue with now half the global population living in cities. In the developing world, that percentage is projected to continue to rise explosively in the foreseeable future, while the developed world is already largely urbanized. This makes global sustainability increasingly affected by the impact of cities, large and small. The rapidly changing demographic profiles of cities, challenge engineering to address the needs of the massive wave of young populations in cities of the developing world, without neglecting their eventual greying as their life expectancy increases, already a burgeoning problem in the developed world. This will require rethinking the design of many interfaces between humans and artifacts to facilitate their use. The urban engineering challenges are to help find ways to provide for this tidal wave of urban growth with solutions for adequate housing, mobility, water, sanitation, electricity, telecommunications, and clean air for all citizens by using local resources as much as possible to develop infrastructure systems that can follow the expansion of urban areas, and thus help reduce the horrendous blight of urban poverty by creating new job opportunities. Urbanization also requires the improvement of quality of life in cities by managing congestion and reducing pollution and noise – in any country.

With the continuing expansion of cities over areas at risk from earthquakes and volcanic eruptions, inundations, devastating storms and tsunamis, and with cities becoming frequent targets of hostile activities, engineering is ever more challenged to find ways to enhance the protection of the populations at risk through more robust and resilient infrastructures, more effective warning systems, and more realistic evacuation or shelter-in-place plans.

Throughout the range of urban sustainability needs of the developing world, good enough solutions will have to be engineered that are more affordable than the traditional ones of the developed world, and that can rapidly satisfy a majority of needs. They range from cheaper and faster construction, to simpler maintenance and repair, ‘green’ energy-, material- and environment-saving technologies, more flexible urban mobility solutions (as in bus rapid transport (BRT) systems) and telecommunications systems that provide broadband interconnections without expensive land links.

Globalization

Globalization of the world economy presents engineering with a third major set of challenges: to help provide populations, regions and individuals with access to global knowledge, markets and institutions by enhancing transportation systems, the diffusion of information and fast Internet technologies, the provision of technical training required to participate in the global economy, and through the development of common standards to facilitate the synergies of engineering capacities across the globe.

New fundamental engineering endeavors

New and prospective challenges in four fundamental engineering domains: materials, energy, information and systems, as well as bioengineering, offer vast new possibilities for the future. In the domain of materials: it is becoming increasingly possible through nanotechnology and bio nanotechnology to create, ion-by-ion, atom-by-atom, or molecule-by-molecule, materials with a broad range of capabilities, from enhanced structural strength to sensing, transferring energy, interacting with light at the scale of light’s wavelength, and changing characteristics on command .This will have the effect of revolutionizing manufacturing, construction and infrastructures. Composite materials, also utilizing a variety of natural materials, make it possible to create strong, lightweight structures. Large-scale self-assembly of materials and microstructures is a more distant but important possibility. Materials and energy are linked in the emerging concept of deconstructable structures and in the development of recycling, so as to reuse as much as possible the materials and the energy embedded within them.

In the energy domain: developments in fuel cells, biomass and waste incinerators, bacterial electricity generators, biofuel engines, photovoltaic generators and thermal collectors with greater efficiencies, in both large and small scale advanced wind turbines and in micro-hydro turbines, all have immediate applications to development. High-voltage superconducting direct current lines offer the prospect – by reducing long distance power losses – to capture distant sources of energy and to transmit energy globally. Also of considerable potential impact is the demonstrated possibility of using the energy from walking in order to generate a current sufficient enough to power low wattage electronic devices. A future challenge responding to a universal need is the design of batteries with greater specific storage capacity per unit weight. Advanced new lighting systems can replace CO₂ generating fuel burning lamps and fires as well as inefficient incandescent bulbs. Nuclear fusion is still a hope of distant realization, but building a large number of advanced, inherently stable fission reactors with a safe proliferation-proof fuel cycle to supply base power will become increasingly necessary to reduce greenhouse emissions, and in the absence of other kinds of energy supply.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

In the information domain: personal portable devices, which are revolutionizing individual communications and access to the internet, will become ever more integrated into single multi-function, multi-purpose devices combining voice, data, and imaging thanks to the future development of billion transistor microchips and universal open standards. This will have great impact on areas not reached by traditional telephone systems for reasons of geography, cost or organization. Continuing advances in semiconductor electronics and computer architecture will make ever more powerful (petaflops and more) computers possible, with enormous impact on engineering analysis and design and the study of biological, social and environmental phenomena. Information is key to increasing the efficiency in the use of energy and materials. It is also key – in synergy with systems engineering – to globally improving the performance of healthcare systems, social services, manufacturing, transportation and other infrastructural systems, agriculture and geophysics, and mineral prospecting and extraction, all major development challenges.

In every major global challenge, from the eradication of the endemic blight of poverty, to universal and effective healthcare, economic development, urbanization, security and global warming, systems engineering of the highest order is called for as it must encompass and harmonize social, political and economic systems, healthcare and nutrition issues, as well as the more traditional engineering systems that deal with water and energy supply, construction, infrastructures and production. To respond to many of these systems engineering challenges, the incipient developments of agent-based and multi-scale modeling offer the possibility of including more realistic behavioural components as well as encompassing in a model dimensions that range from the nano- to the macroscale. A promising systems engineering frontier is also the creation of more sophisticated robots and robotic systems for use in a wide range of applications, from helping the disabled to manufacturing and the performance of dangerous tasks.

A new branch of engineering

Out of all these new challenges and possibilities, a new interdisciplinary thrust of engineering can be expected to emerge, what can perhaps be called engineering for development – and would not just be for developing countries. Engineering for development would respond to the global need for engineers who understand the problems of human development and sustainability, and can bring to bear on them their engineering knowledge. They are motivated by a sense of the future, and are able to interact with other disciplines, with communities and with political leaders, to design and implement solutions. In this context, an often overlooked but essential responsibility of engineering is to help recognize, prevent or mitigate possible unwanted consequences of new technological developments, such as the onset of tropical disease arising from the damming of rivers in tropical region the destruction of thin soils created by mechanized farming equipment, or the social instabilities caused by too rapid an introduction of automation.

Training a sufficient number of engineering professionals focused on development should become a high priority as a critical ingredient in the ability of the global community to deal with the emerging and urgent issues that confront it today.

The engineering community in the third millennium needs to create a new vision, goal and strategy for itself. Though it is impossible to predict what the world will be like even in 2020, that vision should include a genuine improvement in the quality of life for all as well as long-term environmental, social and economic sustainability. The goal of engineering would then be to contribute towards achieving that vision, with its strategy focusing on the development of whatever structures, skills and technologies are needed.

The world median age at graduation of doctorate holders in engineering appears to be about 32 years around 2005–2006 (with some fifteen countries in the 30–35 years interval), but this figure reveals considerable differences notably between Western and Eastern Europe countries – lowest in Belgium and Cyprus (only 28 years) but significantly higher in, for instance Bulgaria (44), Lithuania (42), Romania and the Czech Republic (40). In about half the countries surveyed, women obtained their engineering doctorates faster than their male counterparts (Table 1).

Broadly three-quarters of the overall doctorate holders are working in the higher education sector. The government sector is also an important employer of doctorate holders who are active in research and teaching activities or otherwise working in management and professional positions. Engineering doctorate holders would be expected essentially to work in the enterprise sector but in nine out of the thirteen countries for which such sector of employment data are available, the university sector attracts more engineering doctors than firms. In the other four countries (Austria, Belgium, the Czech Republic and the United States) enterprise is employing something like at least 10 per cent of the engineering doctors population.

It is a well-known fact that there are significant salary differences between men and women also for doctorate holders across sectors. In the United States women's salaries were overall 25 per cent lower than those of men in 2003, and in Canada 20 per cent lower. Discontent with salaries is a principal cause of employment dissatisfaction and mobility inclination. Dissatisfaction with salaries touched some 20 per cent of the doctorate holders in the United States, 40 per cent in Portugal and 55 per cent in Argentina. The percentages were even higher among women (2003).

Every person liable to pay tax under these Acts (other than a person earning salary or wages, in respect of whom the tax is payable by the employer), shall obtain a certificate of enrolment from the assessing authority.

Service Tax

Chapter V of the Finance Act 1994 (as amended) and Chapter V-A of the Finance Act, 2003 requires that upon provision of certain listed services, a service tax with respect to the same must be paid. Every person who is liable to pay service tax must register himself for the same.

Value Added Tax (VAT)

VAT is a system of multi-point levies on each of the purchases in the supply chain with the facility of set-off input tax on sales whereby tax is paid at the stage of purchase of goods by a trader and on purchase of raw materials by a manufacturer. VAT is based on the value addition of goods and the related VAT liability of the dealer is calculated by deducting input tax credit for tax collected on the sales during a particular period. VAT is a consumption tax applicable to all commercial activities involving the production and distribution of goods and the provisions of services. Each State that has introduced VAT has its own VAT Act under which persons liable to pay VAT must register and obtain a registration number from the Excise Tax Officer of the respective State.

Goods and Services Tax (GST)

The Government of India proposed a comprehensive national goods and services tax (“GST”) regime that would combine taxes and levies by the Central and State Governments into a unified rate structure. In this regard, the Constitution (101 Amendment) Act 2016, which received Presidential assent on September 8, 2016, enabled the Government of India and state governments to introduce GST. Accordingly Goods and Services tax (“GST”) was enacted to make a provision for levy and collection of tax on supply of goods or services or both and was made effective from July 1, 2017.

GST is a destination based tax levied on supply of goods and services. GST is levied on all transactions such as sale, transfer, purchase, barter, lease, or import of goods and/or services. India adopted a dual GST model, meaning that taxation is administered by both the Union and State Governments. Transactions made within a single state are levied with Central GST (CGST) by the Central Government and State GST (SGST) by the government of that state. For inter-state transactions and imported goods or services, an Integrated GST (IGST) is levied by the Central Government. GST will be levied on all stages of the supply chain till the final sale to consumers, providing ITC benefits on the basis of invoices issued at the previous stage of the supply chain.

2. USE OF ESTIMATES

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP) requires the management of the Company to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported balances of assets and liabilities and disclosures relating to the contingent liabilities, if any, as at the date of the financial statements and reported amounts of income and expenses during the year. Examples of such estimates include provisions for doubtful debts, employee retirement benefit plans, provision for income tax etc. The difference between the actual results and estimates are recognized in the period in which results are known or materialized.

3. PROPERTY, PLANT & EQUIPMENTS

Fixed assets are stated at historical cost less accumulated depreciation and impairment losses, if any. Cost includes purchase price and all other attributable cost to bring the assets to its working condition for the intended use.

Subsequent expenditures related to an item of tangible asset are added to its book value only if they increase the future benefits from the existing asset beyond its previously assessed standard of performance.

4. DEPRECIATION

Tangible Fixed Assets

Depreciation on tangible fixed assets is computed on considering useful life provided in the Schedule - II of the Companies Act, 2013. During the preceding years, the Company was providing depreciation on written down value basis at the rate prescribed in Schedule XIV of the Companies Act, 1956.

Pursuant to Companies Act, 2013 ('the Act') being effective from April 1, 2014, the Company has revised depreciation rates on tangible fixed assets as per useful life specified in Part 'C' of Schedule II of the Act. And due to the same there has been a change in the estimated useful life of depreciable tangible assets which affects the depreciation in the current period and in each period during the remaining useful life of the assets. As the change is only in regard to accounting estimate requiring an adjustment of the carrying amount of tangible assets. The same does not require adjustment in the financial information for the years ended on March 31, 2014 and 2013. The Company has consistently calculated depreciation based on WDV method.

In respect of assets whose useful life had already exhausted as on 1 April 2014, Rs.16,917/- has been adjusted in Reserves and Surplus as on 31.03.2014 in accordance with requirements of Para 7 of Part C of Schedule II of the Act.

5. BORROWING COSTS

Borrowing cost includes interest and amortization of ancillary costs incurred in connection with the arrangement of borrowings. Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition, construction or production of an asset that necessarily takes a substantial period of time to get ready for its intended use or sale are capitalized as part of the cost of the respective asset. All other borrowing costs are expensed in the period they occur.

6. IMPAIRMENT OF ASSETS

(i) The company assesses, at each reporting date whether there is an indication that an asset may be impaired. If any indication exists, or when annual impairment testing for an asset is required, the company estimates the asset's recoverable amount. An asset's (including goodwill) recoverable amount is the higher of an asset's net selling price and its value in use. The recoverable amount is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. In assessing the value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. In determining net selling price, recent market transactions are taken into account, if available. If no such transactions can be identified, an appropriate valuation model is used.

ANI Integrated Services Limited

(ii) After impairment, depreciation/ amortization is provided on the revised carrying amount of the asset over its remaining useful life.

7. INVESTMENTS

Investments, which are readily realizable and intended to be held for not more than one year from the date on which such investments are made, are classified as current investments. All other investments are classified as long-term investments.

On initial recognition, all investments are measured at cost. The cost comprises purchase price and directly attributable acquisition charges such as brokerage, fees and duties.

Current investments are carried in the financial statements at lower of cost and fair value determined on an individual investment basis. Long-term investments are carried at cost. However, provision for diminution in value is made to recognize a decline other than temporary in the value of the investments.

On disposal of an investment, the difference between its carrying amount and net disposal proceeds is charged or credited to the statement of profit and loss.

8. REVENUE RECOGNITION

(i) Deferred income taxes reflect the impact of timing differences between taxable income and accounting income originating during the current year and reversal of timing differences for the earlier years. Deferred tax is measured using the tax rates and the tax laws enacted or substantively enacted at the reporting date.

(ii) Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for all taxable timing differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for deductible timing differences only to the extent that there is reasonable certainty that sufficient future taxable income will be available against which such deferred tax assets can be realized. In situations where the Company has unabsorbed depreciation or carry forward tax losses, all deferred tax assets are recognized only if there is virtual certainty supported by convincing evidence that they can be realized against future taxable profits.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets are reviewed at each reporting date. The company writes-down the carrying amount of a deferred tax asset to the extent that it is no longer reasonably certain or virtually certain, as the case may be, that sufficient future taxable income will be available against which deferred tax asset can be realized. Any such write-down is reversed to the extent that it becomes reasonably certain or virtually certain, as the case may be, that sufficient future taxable income will be available.

1.1 Basis of Allotment

Allotment will be made in consultation with SME Platform of NSE (The Designated Stock Exchange). In the event of oversubscription, the allotment will be made on a proportionate basis in marketable lots as set forth here:

- The total number of Shares to be allocated to each category as a whole shall be arrived at on a proportionate basis i.e. the total number of Shares applied for in that category multiplied by the inverse of the over subscription ratio (number of applicants in the category x number of Shares applied for).
- The number of Shares to be allocated to the successful applicants will be arrived at on a proportionate basis in marketable lots (i.e. Total number of Shares applied for into the inverse of the over subscription ratio).

For applications where the proportionate allotment works out to less than 1200 Equity Shares the allotment will be made as follows:

Each successful applicant shall be allotted 1200 Equity Shares;

The successful applicants out of the total applicants for that category shall be determined by the drawal of lots in such a manner that the total number of Shares allotted in that category is equal to the number of Shares worked out as per (2) above.

If the proportionate allotment to an applicant works out to a number that is not a multiple of 1200 Equity Shares, the applicant would be allotted Shares by rounding off to the lower nearest multiple of 1200 Equity Shares subject to a minimum allotment of 1200 Equity Shares.

If the Shares allotted on a proportionate basis to any category is more than the Shares allotted to the applicants in that category, the balance available Shares for allocation shall be first adjusted against any category, where the allotted Shares are not sufficient for proportionate allotment to the successful applicants in that category, the balance Shares, if any, remaining after such adjustment will be added to the category comprising of applicants applying for the minimum number of Shares. While the Industrial Policy, 1991 prescribes the limits and the conditions subject to which foreign investment can be made in different sectors of the Indian economy, FEMA regulates the precise manner in which such investment may be made. Under the Industrial Policy, unless specifically restricted, foreign investment is freely permitted in all sectors of Indian economy up to any extent and without any prior approvals, but the foreign investor is required to follow certain prescribed procedures for making such investment. The government bodies responsible for granting foreign investment approvals are FIPB and the RBI.

The Government has from time to time made policy pronouncements on FDI through press notes and press releases. The Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion, Ministry of Commerce and Industry, Government of India (“DIPP”), issued consolidated FDI Policy, which with effect from June 07, 2016 consolidates and supersedes all previous press notes, press releases and clarifications on FDI issued by the DIPP that were in force and effect as on June 7, 2016. The Government proposes to update the consolidated circular on FDI Policy once every year and therefore, the Consolidation FDI Policy will be valid until the DIPP issues an updated circular.

The transfer of shares between an Indian resident and a Non-resident does not require prior approval of FIPB or RBI, subject to fulfillment of certain conditions as specified by DIPP / RBI, from time to time. Such conditions include (i) the activities of the investee company are under the automatic route under the foreign direct investment (“FDI”) Policy and the non-resident shareholding is within the sectoral limits under the FDI policy; and (ii) the pricing is in accordance with the guidelines prescribed by the SEBI/RBI.
